PROBE IS BEGUN IN CANAL LIBEL

Government Opens Proceedings in Gotham Against the World.

PULITZER'S MEN ARE CALLED IN

Rayner Introduces Resolution in Senate Asking the Wherefore.

New York, Jan. 18.—The nature of the proceedings which have been instituted against the New York World and the Indianapolis News because of their criticisms of the method by which the purchase of the Panama canal was made, was not disclosed in the brief hearing in court here today. Acting under instructions believed to have been issued by authority of the United States government, United States District Attorney Henry L. Stimson had subpoenaed William B. McLaughlin, sporting editor of the World, and J. Angus Shaw, secretary of the Press Publishing company, to testify before a federal grand jury today in an action which was not described in the subpoenas. It was believed, however, to be the outcome of President Roosevelt's message to congress in which he protested against the linking of the name of Charles P. Taft, brother of the president-elect, and J. Douglas Robinson, the president's brother-in-law, in criticisms of the canal purchase.

Proceedings Are Halted.

The examination of the World's men was halted by an order obtained by counsel for the World's editors, calling upon Mr. Stimson to show cause why the subpoenas should not be quashed.

Brief argument was heard by United States Circuit Court Judge Henry C. Ward today on the motion to quash the subpoenas, after which an adjournment was taken until 4 o'clock this afternoon, when Judge Ward will hear further arguments.

John A. Bowers, of counsel for Mr. McLaughlin and Mr. Shaw, argued that the form of the subpoena was illegal inasmuch as the concluding words of the subpoena, namely "In a certain cause now pending and undetermined in this said court between the United States," were crossed out, making the subpoena read to "testify to what they may know generally."

Mr. Bowers held that the subpoena was illegal inasmuch as it did not state the nature of the inquiry or the person accused and that the proceeding was an abuse of process.

District Attorney Stimson, speaking for the United States, argued that the form of the subpoena had been used in practice in this district for fifty years and was recognized by the statutes of the United States. Mr. Stimson said "the same situation arises in a corporate exaamination to find out who is responsible. It is often impossible to find out who is responsible in a corporation. How can we name the man accused until we know who is to be indicted?"

Judge Protects the Men.

Judge Ward interrupted to say that this was a case of practice and that no one should be given an opportunity of bringing a man before the grand jury and rake about his affairs to make a criminal of him.

Several other witnesses in whose behalf no injunction was obtained, were called before the grand jury to give evidence today. The first to be examined was H. H. Bjornson, who is said to be connected with the Washington office of Sullivan & Cromwell, the lawyers. Mr. Cromwell had a prominent part in the acquisition of the Panama canal. Mr. Bjornson said that he was questioned as to whether the firm of Sullivan & Cromwell had offered to pay for the suppression of stories about the canal. He said that he replied that he knew nothing about it, as he was otherwise engaged at the time of the canal negotiations.

Other witnesses who were waiting to go before the grand jury was D. M. Engleman, of the International News Service, who said he went abroad to investigate the canal purchase and on his return submitted a report to the national democratic committee, which afterward got into the possession of the World.

Jonas Whitley, foremly of the World, but now in the office of Sullivan & Cromwell; A. C. Rowsey, of the Boston American, and John I. Weir, of the New York American, were also waiting their turn to testify.

RAYNER WANTS TO KNOW.

Washington, Jan. 18.—A resolution was introduced today by Senator Rayner, of Maryland, calling on the attorney general for information concerning the bringing of a suit for libel against certain newspapers. Mr. Rayner asked for immediate consideration, saying that the purpose was to get information whether this suit had been ordered, whether it was brought at the instance of the president, under what statute, by whom ordered, and by what power and authority the courts are being used to forward this suit.

HOUSE PUTS CURB ON MR. WILLETT

The New York Member in Speech Violently Assails the President.

SPEECH IS A FOUL MESS OF EPITHETS

Members Listened to Some of It and Declined to Hear More.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Characterizing President Roosevelt as a gargoyle and as "this pigmy descendant of dutch trade people" and charging him with having "established a court in the white house which would have delighted the hearts of his admired Alexander Hamilton," Mr. Willett, of New York, in the house today, made one of the most bitter attacks on the chief executive ever heard in that body.

So violent became the New York member's denunciation of the president finally that the house became an uproar and four protest was made against his continuing. Finally the house by a vote of 116 to 78 denied Mr. Willett the privilege of continuing his speech.

Mr. Willett took for his theme "The Passing of Roosevelt," and in a speech of great length, dwelt with numerous of the president's acts since he came into office and scathingly denounced them.

Likened to a Horse Tedder.

After declaring that in the face of all sorts of conditions Americans were possessed of a universal sense of humor, Mr. Willett said that to such a people "It must be confessed a chief magistrate who has himself no sense of humor, moving like a horse tedder over the hay field of American activities, stirring up every drying blade of once green grass, to let it fall drier than before; quarreling one day with the practical politician, then with the part-your-hair-in-the-middle reformers, then with the socialists, then with the great industrial corporations; wrestling in agony of spirit with Noah Webster and our glorious English tongue; taking a fall out of nature fakers, exhorting our women to avoid race suicide, cannot be an unmixed nuisance.

Mr. Willett accused him of having "knifed" Secretary Long, of being "A warrior alone in Cuba;" of having won the governorship of New York by a mere fluke "when the false halo of San Juan hill was above his head; the beneficiary of assassins and last and crowning piece of luck, the nominee for president, when all the aggressive elements of passion wanted to see their own candidate defeated; the mammoth jocularity has got to laugh; with every appearance the gargoyle has been funny from the hour it left its native quarry."

Ridicules Claim as to Ancestry.

Continuing Mr. Willett said:

"He boasts of Irish blood, but no historic Irishman would have treated an ally as he treated Mr. Harriman.

"He exults in a strain of old Huguenot, but the French gentleman does not fly into a passion and lash the horse of a timid young girl whose only offense is inadvertently passing the royal party in a public highway. Even Louis, the fourteenth, was not that sort of a tyrant."

"He tells us that southern aristocrats were among his polyglot ancestors, but I can inform him that if the wife of a Robert Toombs or a Jefferson Davis had been treated by him as Mrs. Miner Morris was, he would have been called out or branded as a coward if he had been a thousand times a president.

"Are you shocked that a chief magistrate should justify such characterization? I am shocked, too."

Quotes From Roosevelt's Books.

He quotes from President Roosevelt's books, in which the president is alleged to have attacked Washington, Jefferson, Monroe, Jackson, Tyler, Pierce and others.

"Of course," said Mr. Willett, "these condemnations roar as gently as any suckling dove when compared with his denunciation of John Paul Jones as a 'pirate,' of Napoleon the Great, as utterly unscrupulous; of New England's idolized Wendell Phillips, as always 'either mischievous or ridiculous, and usually both;' of Thomas Paine, the first champion of American liberty as 'a filthy little atheist;' of miracle believing Roman Catholics as 'persons of arrested mental development;' of Quakers as 'quite as undesirable citizens as duelists.' But he has been frank enough in abusing other presidents to shut the lips of his defenders on the dignity of the presidential office.

A King and a Court.

"We have a king and a court now," Mr. Willett exclaimed, "as good an imitation of a real thing known to the nobility of monarchical countries as the scion of a family of trading Dutchmen can concoct."

At this juncture Mr. Willett called the roll of the so-called Ananias club and said:

"The earth is intoxicated and reels around our jocularity. He alone is the personification of sobriety, tem-

COTTAGERS WANT AN OFFICER ON JOB YEAR 'ROUND

Held Meeting at Rome City Saturday to Urge Some Reforms.

In the effort to secure for Sylvan lake an officer whose duties shall embrace police, sanitary and garbage disposal powers, and who shall be on duty the year 'round, the executive committee of the Sylvan Lake Improvement association held a meeting Saturday afternoon at the Sylvan Lake hotel in Rome City.

Mayor W. J. Hosey presided, and it was reported that Noble county had appropriated an additional $150 to employ a health officer at the lake. Fish Commissioner Sweeney has indicated his consent to the new plan of combining other duties with that of deputy fish warden, and the cottagers hope to have a paid official on duty at the lake twelve months of the year.

The association registered a protest against lowering the water of the lake for so long a time each winter. It is said that this drives the fish into the deeper pools, and that during the low water thousands of fish are illegally caught there.

LITERARY PROGRAM AND MUSIC.

Turnverein Vorwaerts Listened to Paper by B. C. Von Kahlden.

The Turnverein Vorwaerts spent a most interesting and entertaining evening Sunday at their hall in listening to an address by Prof. Benno C. Von Kahlden on "German Literature" and also to several musical renditions by the Concordia Singing society. Mr. Von Kahlden's paper was one of the best ever heard in that hall.

REAL ESTATE CHANGES HANDS.

The R. L. Romy Investment company has sold to Willis Hattersley its double house property at 915 and 917 West Berry street, taking as a part of the consideration Mr. Hattersley's property at 311 Douglas avenue. The sale and exchange were negotiated through the agency of Isaac d'Isay.

GO INTO BANKRUPTCY.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 18.—Richard Walsh, president of the San Miguel Plantation company, who with other officials of the company, was recently indicted on charges of using the mails to defraud, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the federal court today. The liabilities are placed at $20,566 and the face value of the assets at $51,926.

It was thought this afternoon that the paternity charge brought against Elmer Davies in Justice Tancey's court by a Decatur girl would be ended in a marriage.

BIG FINE STICKS; MUST QUIT STATE

Waters-Pierce Oil Company Loses Texas Suit in the Supreme Court.

STATE COURTS ARE ENTIRELY UPHELD

Must Pay Fine of $1,600,000 and Cease Business in Lone Star State.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The supreme court of the United States today affirmed the decree of the state courts of Texas imposing a fine of $1,623,000 on the Waters-Pierce Oil company, of St. Louis, and ousting it from the state on the charge of violation of the Texas anti-trust law.

The action was begun in the state courts under the state anti-trust laws and resulted in a verdict directing the cancellation of the company's permit to do business in the state and fixing a penalty of $1,623,900 for the violation of the laws from the time that the permit was issued on May 31st, 1900, until April 24, 1907, when the action was begun.

The bill charged that the company had violated the state laws every day since it has entered the state through a conspiracy with the Standard Oil company, of New Jersey, to control the oil business in Texas, but the company denied the charge and in addition contended that even if it had violated the law it was not amenable, because the business transacted was of an interstate character and therefore subject only to control by the United States authorities. The penalty was at the rate of $1,500 per day from May 31st, 1900 to April 1st, 1903, and at the rate of fifty dollars per day from that time on.

Moyer Loses Suit.

The supreme court today decided against former President Moyer, of the Western Federation of Miners, the damage suit brought by him against former Governor Peabody, of Colorado, on account of Moyer's imprisonment on the governor's order because he alleged connection with riots at Telluride, Colo., in 1904.

EXTENDED CONGRATULATIONS.

Parishioners Offer Well Wishes on Pastor's Anniversary.

Sunday was the sixty-sixth anniversary of the birth of Rev. Samuel Wagenhals, pastor of Trinity English Lutheran church, and hence made a day of special observance by his parishioners. Much to his surprise he found the church artistically decorated with flowers upon entering it to conduct the morning service. Later his parishioners passed in front of the chancel and congratulated him, extending well wishes and many happy returns of the day.

MINERS' CONVENTION WILL BE A WARM SESSION

Hot Times Promised in the Gathering to be Held in Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Jan. 18.—The twelve hundred delegates that will represent the three hundred thousand union coal miners of the United States and Canada in their twentieth international convention, which opens in Tomlinson Hall Tuesday, began arriving today.

This convention, which will be called to order by President Lewis at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, will last until February 1.

The Indiana controversy will be one of the things that will cause a bluster as a result of the trouble originating at the Hudson mine.

President W. D. Van Horn and the other district officers now stand suspended and the question of their being entitled to a place in the convention will arise. The Indiana miners, however, have stood by their district officers, and with them have defied President Lewis. They even ran Van Horn for vice president, and now, just before the meeting of the national convention, talk of Indiana seceding and taking other districts has been started. It is expected that in his annual address, which President Lewis will deliver tomorrow afternoon, he will deal with the Indiana officers and miners.

In addition to the Indiana clash and overshadowing it, are the bitter personalities and antagonisms that have grown out of the election campaign between John H. Walker and President Lewis. During this heated campaign charges were made that Francis Feehan, president of the Western Pennsylvania miners, was getting $10,000 from the Illinois miners to carry his district against Lewis. This led to many bitter personal charges reflecting against both Walker and Lewis. Both, in turn, were characterized as disrupters of the organization.

In addition to this bitter factional blood western Pennsylvania district officers and central Pennsylvania men have also been at cross purposes with President Lewis, and they may add to the complications.

FOUGHT DUEL WITH KNIVES.

Richmond, Ky., Jan. 18.—County Assessor Boyd Wagers was probably fatally and W. D. Oldham, seriously wounded in a duel with knives yesterday following a game of cards. Oldham is one of the leading merchants of this city and, according to the story told by the police, his threat to stop payment on some of his checks, issued during the game, was the cause of the fight. In addition to his county office, Wagers is one of the most widely known cattle buyers of this section of the state.

MARSHALL BEGINS REFORM PROGRAM

Causes Bill to Go in to Cut Down Expenses of the Executive.

EXTRAVAGANCE IS TO BE LOPPED OFF

Legislature Reassembles to Devote Itself to a Busy Week.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 18.—Governor Marshall's determination to reduce the expenses of the executive offices found expression this afternoon in the introduction of a bill by Representative Faulkner. The Faulkner bill approved by Governor Marshall provides for the following officers and salaries:

Private secretary, $2,500; governor's stenographer and ex-officio clerk of the board of pardons, $900; executive clerk, $900, and governor's counsel, $3,600.

The position of governor's counsel is created. This bill would do away with the office of executive accountant, which has paid $2,500, and the position of clerk of the board of pardons, which carried a salary of $900. The salaries of the executive clerk and the governor's stenographer have been reduced, the former from $1,500 to $900 and the latter from $1,000 to $900. The salary of the governor's counsel, which office would be created, it is said, would be less than attorneys fees paid by the various state commissions, the governor's counsel to serve three commissions.

Kling Causes a Stir.

Both houses convened at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Senator Kling caused a stir in the senate when he introduced a resolution petitioning congress to amend the constitution so that United States senators would be elected by direct vote.

Senator Kling made reference to secret caucuses which, he said, prevented the people from knowing how their representatives voted.

The committee on the organization of courts reported favorably on the bill and bill to establish a superior court at Linton. The McDowell bill for the separation of the Greene and Sullivan circuit was recommended for indefinite postponement.

Following a resolution by Senator Hawkins to invite President-elect Taft to attend the Indiana conference, beginning February 19, the senate took up the roll call for bills.

The house took up the roll call for bills immediately upon convening.

Governor Marshall notified the house that he had signed the bill appropriating $115,000 to pay the expense of the session.

BUSY WEEK LOOMS UP.

Indianapolis, Jan. 18.—The state legislature was not in session this morning, having adjourned Saturday until 2 o'clock this afternoon. Legislators were coming to the city this morning and with them they brought many measures which, they said, would be introduced this afternoon if there was a roll call on bills. Both Lieutenant Governor Hall and Speaker Honan said it was their intention to call for new bills. Tonight many committees will meet to digest the grist of bills already introduced.

A bill repealing the law prohibiting Sunday baseball was promised for the roll call this afternoon by Representative Brolley, of North Vernon. The repeal bill has been introduced in previous sessions. In 1907 it was defeated in the senate.

Moore's Primary Bill.

Among measures expected on the senate roll call is the primary election bill by Senator Moore. Senator Moore announced today that he had changed the bill to make primary elections to nominate congressmen compulsory. This leaves for conventions only the nomination of state officers below the lieutenant governor.

Senator Mattingly said he would introduce a bill to keep weighing scales in an accurate condition.

Senator Higgins has ready a measure authorizing the township trustee to establish boundary lines where such lines have been marked by a creek or pond. The trustee under the Higgins bill would be compelled to order the construction of fences where the line is in doubt.

A bill giving trust companies or banks an appeal to the circuit court in cases where their bond has been refused by township board or other bodies having in charge the placing of public monies, has been prepared by Senator Bowser.

Bill to Aid County Fairs.

In the house of representatives, Representative Askren has a bill providing that the state give five thousand dollars to aid county agricultural fairs if such fairs have been held continuously for forty-nine years. Representative Maas expects to introduce two bills, one providing for the licensing of plumbers in towns of over five thousand inhabitants and the other compelling tenants to return keys of rented properties within twenty-four

AFTER TWO FORT WAYNE PITCHERS

Rochester Wants VanAnda and Zanesville Dickers for Alberts.

CHANGE IN OWNERS AT GRAND RAPIDS

Central League Magantes in Very Busy Session at South Bend.

[Special to The Sentinel.]

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 18.—The sale of Pitcher VanAnda to the Rochester club, of which John Ganzell is the new manager, and an effort on the part of Roy Montgomery to buy Charlie Alberts for Zanesville, are two of the things which have occupied the attention of Manager Jack Hendricks, of the Fort Wayne team, since his arrival in South Bend last night to attend the Central league meeting. Alberts will be sold if enough money is offered, and Ganzel will be here late this afternoon to talk over the VanAnda matter.

Grand Rapids Franchise Sold.

The Grand Rapids franchise was sold this afternoon to C. P. Brotherton, of Ashtabula, O., who is here representing Bobby Lowe. Another aspirant for the franchise in the furniture city was H. C. Smith, who is here from Chicago in the interest of Joe McGinnity, of the New York Nationals, but the Ashtabula man carried the deal through.

There is a full representation of the league here, and when the officers went into session at 2 o'clock this afternoon the most important matters slated to come up were the rule against receiving farmed players, the length of the schedule and the salary limit.

The limit will be fixed by prescribing the maximum salary for any one player, the schedule will be 140 games and no farmed players will be received in the league. The limit will probably be placed between $180 and $200 a month, not including the managers. The owners assert the reduction will not lower the standard of playing. President Carson said today that prospects have never before looked so good.

Many Officials There.

Those present when the first session began were: W. W. Irwin and B. F. Perkins, of the Wheeling club; Jack Hendricks, of the Fort Wayne club; Harry Stalhefer and Knoll, of the Evansville club; Bade Myers, President Wolfe, Elmer Reddell and Charles Spatts, of Dayton; H. J. Kimble and Manager Monigomery, of Zanesville, representing the new management there; Lewis Smith and George Groeschow, of Terre Haute, and Bert Annis and Angus Grant, representing South Bend, and Grand Rapids. President Frank R. Carson has been very much in evidence ever since the guests began to arrive. C. W. White, of Chicago, is also in attendance and so is John Ganzell, who is this year to pilot the Rochester team in the Eastern league.

Grant Had No Chance.

Judging from the conferences and wire pulling which began soon after the magnates assembled today it was evident that A. A. Grant, of South Bend, had not the least possible chance to land the Grand Rapids franchise in the Central league, the directors being determined to block any deal by which the clever South Bend manager would go to Grand Rapids in the role of a manager. A deal of this nature, they claim, would smack of syndicate ball even if Grant could show a bill of sale from Annis.

WILL HAVE SPECIAL CAR.

Merchants Leave for Indianapolis Tomorrow Morning.

Secretary Harry Kennerk is in charge of arrangements and will have charge of the car going and returning.

will appear before the grand jury in this city tomorrow in connection with the Panama canal libel proceedings. Mr. Taft reached Wasnington today from Augusta, where he has been visiting with his brother, and at once called on President Roosevelt for a short conference. He said that he did not discuss the details of the matter with the president, and did not know the inside of the case. Mr. Taft said that he had received a request from the district attorney to appear here tomorrow afternoon and that he had not been formally subpoenaed. He did not know, he said, whether Douglas Robinson, the president's brother-in-law, had been requested to appear before the jury. The names of Mr. Taft and Mr. Robinson were mentioned in the publications about which President Roosevelt complained.

Attorney General Bonaparte today had nothing to say regarding the subpoenas. He has already stated that he expected to make a statement on the subject within a few days and pending that statement he declined to discuss the case.

DIVORCE CASE ENDS IN A LECTURE BY COURT

Judge O'Rourke Says Too Much Meddling Caused It—Court News.

Breaking into the proceedings after a portion of the evidence in the divorce action of Mabelle C. Rathert against John Rathert had been heard in the circuit court today, Judge O'Rourke summarily declared that there was not the slightest of legitimate grounds for a divorce and that he would refuse the decree. More than this, the court proceeded to give a wholesome lecture to the litigants in which he advised them to talk over their differences, patch them up, forget them and live in peace and harmony in not too close proximity to their friends.

The court room was well filled with witnesses and interested spectators when the case came to its sudden termination. The plaintiff and one or two other witnesses had been examined when Judge O'Rourke put an end to the case by striking it from the docket, and in the admonition which followed he made it very clear that in his opinion there had been too much mother-in-law in the case; that the difficulties of the Ratherts had been due very largely to the meddling of friends. He told the young couple that they had no real cause of action and that the marriage vows were too sacred to be sundered as the result of either minor difficulties or the ill-advised counsel of friends. He declared his belief that if the young people would reach an understanding and then manage their own affairs apart from the interference of friends there would be no occasion for separation and urged them to attempt a reconciliation, reiterating the fact that the divorce would not be granted. The husband is a mail carrier, and it developed that he is willing to forget the past and live with his wife. She charged cruelty, all of which he denied.

Will Argue Milk Case.

The case of Samuel Ake and others against the City of Fort Wayne has been set down for argument in the circuit court on February 26. This is the action to test the milk ordinance of the city of Fort Wayne. A restraining order was granted when the case was filed some months ago in which Mr. Ake asked for an injunction against the city health authorities to prevent them from enforcing the provisions of the ordinance, which the milkmen declare is unfairly restrictive.

Will Sell Schoolhouse.

Trustee Herman R. Fenker, of Adams township, today secured from the circuit court an order permitting him to sell the public school property in District No. 4, Adams township. The school was abandoned two years ago and will in all probability never be used for school purposes again.

About the Court House.

Elmer Davies, arrested on a paternity charge, secured his liberty on a bond of $500.

Henry Grabner, elevator operator at the court house, has resumed work after an enforced vacation due to illness.

An appeal bond has been filed in the case of McAfee & Arter vs. Maurice Goldberger, which involves a dispute over payment for the junk taken from the ruins of the New Aveline hotel. Mr. Goldberger will carry the case to the appellate court.

In the court of Justice Grabner today George Richhart pleaded guilty to a charge of hunting on Sunday, preferred by Deputy Game Warden Fleming, and was assessed a fine of $5 and costs.

The case of Emma Brudi vs. Frank Gladieux, jr., which has been on trial in the superior court for several days, went to the jury this afternoon.

PRESIDENT WILL NOT ATTEND.

Washington, Jan. 18.—President Roosevelt today declined an invitation to attend the National Tariff Commission convention, to be held in Indianapolis, February 16, stating that he did not desire to interfere in a question which should be and will be settled by his successor. The president added that he had several times expressed himself as in favor of a general tariff commission.

hours after the property is vacated. Representative Clore said he would offer his bill abolishing the offices of state game and fish commissioner.

A bill authorizing assessors to administer oaths to persons making claims under the exemption law, is in the hands of Representative Hostetter.

Representative Stahl has two measures concerning farmers mutual insurance companies. The first would confine such companies to one county and the second permit their organization with a greater capital than under the present statute.

County auditors are intent upon abolishing the office of county assessor and it is probable that this session a bill to that effect will be introduced. The auditors wish to take on the duties of the assessors for additional compensation; the extra salary being less than that paid the assessors.

Twisted.

Mrs. Hoyle—I sat in the rotunda of the automobile.

Mrs. Doyle—Don't you mean the tonneau?

Mrs. Hoyle—Well, really, we went so fast that I was all mixed up and am not certain just where I did sit.—Minneapolis Journal.

HOUSE PUTS CURB ON MR. WILLETT

perate of statement, calmness in speech and action. The ever-moving hay tedder hurries over the field, throwing upward the clover of politics, the timothy of zoology, the blue grass of history and letting each blade fall a little drier than it was before.

"Jealousy you can read in the gargoyle's distorted features.

Mistreatment of Heroes.

"You look on those twisted lines and it is easy, Oh, so easy, to understand the insolence toward Dewey, the one great figure of the Spanish-American war, the hero who took Manila with the worst ships a rotten bureaucracy could find him.

"The persistent defamation of Admiral Schley, who really fought the battle of Santiago Bay.

"The insults heaped on General Miles, whose counsel was ignored in the expensive blunders of the land campaign at Santiago."

The president, Mr. Willett declared, showed his teeth at all real heroes, "because real heroes are gall and wormwood to bogus ones."

A Few Other Things.

Continuing his denunciation, Mr. Willett charged that the president had bulldozed President Castro, had seen the Filipinos brutally treated, had marooned Colonel Stewart, whom he did not like; had kept a young woman from earning an honest living by telling the truth; had allowed "scandalous conditions" to exist in the army and navy; had compelled his subordinates "to act as hunting dogs for the Czar of Russia in trailing down men who have fought for liberty."

In concluding he said among other things:

"You may say then, that one individual gargoyle does not count for much after all. No; not in the development of the centuries, but he counts vitally and continuously as affecting the people who have to live under him. And the change from a Nero fiddling while Rome is burning, to a Vespasian calmly devoted to securing as good government as tendencies will permit, is a change to be as devoutly welcomed by us as by the ancient Romans."

Was Called to Order.

Several times in the course of Mr. Willett's remarks he was called to order by Mr. Hughes, of West Virginia.

"I call him to order," Mr. Hughes exclaimed. "He is going ahead with a lot of rot that neither the house nor the country is interested in."

Mr. Butler, of Pennsylvania, in the chair, ruled that Mr. Willett was speaking under license of general debate and that he was not called on to indicate in advance the subject of his remarks.

Mr. Willett then proceeded and frequently elicited applause from his democratic colleagues.

Mr. Willett's reference to "the defamation of Admiral Schley" caused Mr. Gardner, of Massachusetts, to object.

After a good deal of sparring the chair ruled that the words were offensive.

House in a Furore.

By this time the house was in a furore. Above the babel of voices Mr. Gardner was heard to make the point that a member having been found out of order in debate he was no longer entitled to the floor.

Messrs. Hepburn, of Iowa, and Mann, of Illinois, with copies of the rules in their hands, appealed for recognition. Mr. Hepburn insisted that Mr. Willetts should take his seat. Mr. Mann in the meantime reading some rules on the case. The chair directed Mr. Willett to take his seat, which he reluctantly did.

Before the chair passed on the points of Messrs. Mann and Hepburn, Mr. Chandler, of Mississippi, moved that Mr. Willett be allowed to "proceed in order."

On that motion a vote was taken with the result that by a party vote of 78 to 126 the house refused further to hear the New York member.

Mrs. Mayme Sessler, of 1118 Oak street, who recently underwent an operation in St. Joseph's hospital, is improving as steadily as can be expected.

WOMAN LEAPS FROM WINDOW WHILE DEMENTED

Mrs. Raleigh Koons Sustains Injuries Which Cause Her Death.

While suffering from dementia, Mrs. Raleigh Koons, 333 West Jefferson street, leaped from a second story window at Hope hospital Saturday afternoon, sustaining injuries which resulted in her death at 5 o'clock Sunday morning. She was 42 years of age, and the husband is a shipping clerk for the Independent Rubber company.

Symptoms of mental derangement became marked in the case on Wednesday afternoon, when Mrs. Koons returned from attendance at the special services at Wayne street M. E. church, of which she was a member. though it is said that nothing irrational in her manner was noticed there. The patient was removed to Hope hospital for temporary treatment in the hope that her reason might be quickly restored. Her husband and a nurse were with her almost constantly, but on Saturday afternoon, while both happened to be absent from the room a few moments, the patient leaped from the window of her room. She was found on the ground below, having sustained internal injuries, a concussion of the brain, a fracture of one leg and an extensive gash across the forehead.

Mrs. Koons was a daughter of the late James Ross, a pioneer hotel man, and was born in this city, October 3, 1866. Surviving relatives are the husband, a son, James Ross Koons, aged 7, a sister, Mrs. Norman Carey, of Boston, and two brothers—Judson K. Ross and Wilbert A. Ross, as well as her step mother.

Funeral services Tuesday afternoon at 1:30 from the residence and at 2 o'clock from Wayne street M. E. church, Rev. Frank Lenig officiating.

It is said that prior to the present instance, Mrs. Koons had suffered somewhat from mental derangement.

There is but one answer the city administration can make to the Wabash Valley company's criticism that Fort Wayne is poorly lighted in respect of her streets and that is to place more lights. There are not nearly enough lights and we believe the city can be much better illuminated than it is without appreciably adding to the burden of public expense.

Planning a couple of battleships to have a displacement of 25,000 tons each at a total cost of $30,000,000. Will have just about time to get them completed when the 30,000-tonner will arrive and the dreadnought of the imagination will be out of date. Suppose this expansion of battleships and swelling of naval appropriations will go forward until there is no room for one of them near enough to shore to protect anything and the people will rebel against building war machines at $25,000,000 each to become obsolete in a few years. Then will the naval powers discover they can be at peace without everlastingly blowing in money to keep from fighting.

Enough temperance bills and so-called temperance bills have gone in or are on their way to the legislature to swamp any serious purpose the general assembly may have to deal with the subject. One or two measures that purpose repeal of the county option law and enact a township and ward option measure are supplemented with provisions for drastically regulating the liquor traffic. We do not believe that the county option law can be repealed, but that will constitute no reason why the saloon interests of the state should oppose the proposed regulations. It is either regulation or extirpation, and it is not altogether positive that there is any alternative to the latter. The county option law is not unpopular, as the trial of it has proved and will again prove before the legislature adjourns.

The strained relations between the president and congress will doubtless have as a net result no legislation of importance during the present session. The things chiefly of moment for the present session have been suggested by the president in his message and it may therefore be easily taken for granted that the excitable and excited gentlemen in the big building at the other end of the avenue will give them scant attention. Meanwhile, congress continues in its nagging mood. It wants to know, "if not incompatible with the public interests," what about this, that and the other. Will the president please forward to the senate the documents relating to the identity of the assailant of one William Patterson? Will the president be perfectly frank with the house and tell it what he knows of the disappearance of Morgan? Will the treasury department forward to the senate all information and documents relating to the employment of the secret service in the Charlie Ross case? And so it goes—baiting the president and his cabinet officers for all sorts of information and documents on all sorts of pertinent and impertinent subjects from why the chicken crossed the road to the riddle of the universe. Useful employment, most dignified frittering away of time and money by the most august deliberative body in the world.

President Roosevelt's message to congress vetoing a measure granting water power rights to a certain corporation is made the vehicle of a solemn warning to congress and the country that one of the most valuable of our natural resources is in peril of passing from popular control and becoming the assets and instrument of a great monopoly, which Mr. Roosevelt believes may very easily become in the magnitude of its holdings and the plenitude of its power a rival of the Standard Oil company. The president points out that the "power monopoly" now controls about one-third of the country's water power and already has seized most of the "stragetic sites." From time to time during past half dozen years the scheme to consolidate control of the country's water power has been revealed in one way or another, but not much attention has been paid to it. The president points out the danger and his admonition is most timely, for just now the country is waking up to the importance of conserving its natural resources, important among which is its water power. Since electricity has rendered the wide distribution of power a matter of as much ease as stringing a telephone wire, water power has taken on a new industrial and economic importance. The people should recognize this and, as the president says to congress, give no rights in perpetuity, meanwhile keeping all franchises under government control.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Louisville, Ky.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has certainly done me a world of good and I cannot praise it enough. I suffered from irregularities, dizziness, nervousness, and a severe female trouble. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored me to perfect health and kept me from the operating table. I will never be without this medicine in the house."—Mrs. Sam'l Lee, 3523 Fourth St., Louisville, Ky.

Another Operation Avoided.

Adrian, Ga.—"I suffered untold misery from female troubles, and my doctor said an operation was my only chance, and I dreaded it almost as much as death. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound completely cured me without an operation."—Lena V. Henry, R. F. D. 3.

Thirty years of unparalleled success confirms the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to cure female diseases. The great volume of unsolicited testimony constantly pouring in proves conclusively that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a remarkable remedy for those distressing feminine ills from which so many women suffer.

HOME FROM MINING TRIP.

J. B. White Says Property in California Is Very Valuable.

Greatly enthused over the prospects of a mine situated in eastern California, James B. White returned to his home in this city Saturday evening after making a three weeks' visit at that point. The property is known as the "Southern Belle" mine and is said to be a very rich one, an expert at present on the ground estimating the first earnings at $145,000.

Mr. White holds an option on 400,000 shares in the mine, but says that he will do nothing with the option until the full report of the engineer is heard. The mine was first discovered by the Spaniards and then purchased by a San Francisco man who was ruined by the earthquake and who has no funds with which to work it. The mine is fully equipped with machinery, electrical apparatus and assay instruments and it is the opinion of Mr. White that there are indications that the mine will prove a strike such as the Butte sulphide mine was shown to be.

The subject of Col. D. N. Foster's address which he will deliver at the state convention of the Indiaan Retail Merchants' association on Wednesday afternoon will be "The Postal Savings Bank Law."

Constipation Caused By Indigestion

Is Cured by Helping the Stomach Do Its Work As It Should.

All forms of constipation, bowel or intestinal trouble owe most of their origin to the improper digestion of food. The bowels measure 30 feet. The inside walls or surfaces are wound tightly about with millions of nerves. These nerves give life and control millions of little mouths or suckers which are supposed to take nourishment from the food as it leaves the stomach and passes along this 30-foot human canal.

When indigestion, dyspepsia or stomach trouble occurs, the food being undigested, passes over these millions of mouths, it is a fermented decaying mass and holds no nourishment as it should.

The little mouths suck it up, impart these impurities to the blood, impregnate the little nerves with poison and so the work of constipation and bowel trouble begins.

A natural juice or secretion belongs normally in the little cells and glands along the mucous membrane of the 30-foot canal or bowel. When indigestion occurs this juice is lacking and so the mass of waste matter cannot pass along as it should and is piled up and caked in the bowel, thus bringing pain and misery.

After a while the nerves and nerve centers which give vigor and life to the bowel become paralyzed, thus forever prohibiting the bowel from performing its natural duties.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, when taken after meals, digests the food properly even though the stomach is sick and it passes to the bowels nourishment and juices, which help the intestines not only to do their work at once, but builds them up, restores vitality to the nerves, brings new secretion to the glands and cells, helps bowel action and enriches the blood.

The stomach is the cause. Common sense and science are one on this point. You see it yourself. One little grain of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will perfectly digest 3,000 grains of food. The assimilation of a meal by one of these tablets is an easy matter and it keeps the stomach clean and sweet so that in a brief time this organ is restored.

Every druggist carries them in stock; price 50c. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 150 Stuart Building, Marshall, Mich.

Electric Talks

No. 8

In our last Talk we showed, by figures, that Fort Wayne, were its population as compact, its streets in as good condition, and its police force as large as those of five cities of its class with which comparison was made, would require 836 street lamps instead of the present 418, to give it equally adequate street lighting.

To confine ourselves to Indiana cities, with whose conditions as electric-lighted cities we of Fort Wayne are somewhat more familiar,

Let Us Measure Up Beside a Few

SOUTH BEND is a pretty well lighted city with 17,000 less population than Fort Wayne and 332 more street lamps.

This is the showing at SOUTH BEND: 45,000 population with 750 street lamps, giving a street lamp to every 60 persons.

Compare this with Fort Wayne, where one street lamp does its little best for 148 people.

In other words, if Fort Wayne had as many street lamps in proportion to its population as has SOUTH BEND it would today have 1,033 such lamps.

Yet with some 418 lamps, on only part of the streets included in our extraordinary street mileage and even those on the unsafe and out-of-date "moonlight schedule," Fort Wayne is asked to consider its streets properly lighted and to consent at this time to the peddling out of Municipal Electric current for private-house and commercial uses, WITH THOSE NOT USING IT PAYING FOR THOSE WHO DO!

NEW ALBANY is another Indiana city which combines attractive residence features with live business policies. One of the sort of sensible towns that larger cities can get points from.

NEW ALBANY has 20,628 population and 292 street lamps. This means that one 2,000-candle power street lamp is provided for every 70 persons resident there.

Compare this again with Fort Wayne and its single street lamp to every 148 persons.

To give Fort Wayne residents as much street illumination in proportion to our population would require 885 street lamps.

Nevertheless with only 418 street lamps, and those not lighted every night and all night, but only when the moon is not scheduled to appear, Fort Wayne's thinking citizens are asked to believe that the Municipal Light plant is justified not only in undertaking Commercial Lighting at this time but in cutting rates in order to induce citizens to give it something to do with its electricity!

Make a note of the figures that tell the story of another Indiana city—MUNCIE with 27,293 population and 313 street lamps.

That means that MUNCIE provides street lamps for every 87 individuals in its population. To provide as well for Fort Wayne residents would require 713 street lamps.

There Are Other Cities

and plenty of them to show just where as a city we really stand among the electric lighted cities of Indiana and the country.

Winslow, Ind., Man Escapes After Arrest for Assault.

Petersburg, Ind., Jan. 18.—Edgar Thompson, arrested yesterday for assault and battery with intent to kill a young man named Newton, escaped from Constable Dan Tisdal at Winslow today. Constable Tisdal was holding Thompson until Sheriff Harris, of this city, arrived to take him in custody. Thompson, who had defied arrest, swore he would never be taken to jail and when he heard that the sheriff was on his way to get him he broke away from the constable and pursued by a dozen citizens rushed through streets and houses until he came to the covered bridge at the edge of town, where he would have been captured, but he sprang into the icy water of the Patoka river and swam to the other side and escaped.

IN THE CITY'S CHURCHES

EMMANUEL MOVEMENT FORMS TOPIC OF INTEREST

Rev. Vichert Gives Splendid Address at Ministerial Meeting.

The meeting of the Fort Wayne Ministerial association at the First Presbyterian church this morning proved one of unusual interest and was well attended. The address was given by Rev. John F. Vichert, pastor of the First Baptist church. He dwelt eloquently upon "The Emmanuel Movement," a topic that is attracting world wide attention, and was heard with close interest and appreciation. His effort was most comprehensive in its presentation and he spoke in part as follows:

"In a recent article I have come upon these significant sentences: 'A mighty movement is unfolding. Science and religion have been traveling apart around an orbit that meets at last, and the world thrills at the union. Groping blindly in the dark, they have touched hands across a closing chasm. Feeling for an unknown force, science says "psychology," religion murmurs "prayer," and both breathe "God."'

"This seems to be exemplified in the Emmanuel movement. Eminent clergymen have felt that they ought to bring the gospel to bear upon men's bodies as well as upon their souls. They are making effort in this direction, and many distinguished neurologists and phychologists, looking upon what they are doing in the name of Christ, say that this is in perfect harmony with the best that they have learned.

Mysery of Healing.

"The promoters of the Emmanuel movement have felt that, as compared with the apostolic age, something had been lost out of the life of the church. Christ healed diseases and gave his disciples power to do the same. Wrapped up with the commission to preach the gospel, which we feel is perpetually binding, is the commission to heal the sick. We have no authority for divorcing them, and the church today must give attention to the ministry of healing.

"The methods to be employed may differ from the methods of Jesus. That is inevitable, for this is the twentieth century, and not the first. The conditions under which Jesus worked are different from conditions now. The minds of those with whom he had to do were filled with superstitions, superstitions which he could not overcome and which he never took the trouble to combat. In his day disease was explained on the ground of demon possession. Bacteriology and psychology have been revealing to us the real devils which cause disease, and now in place of superstition we offer scientific fact in explanation of disease.

The Power of Jesus.

"The main point is that Jesus possessed and exercised power to heal. That same power his disciples were to exercise. It seems to the leaders in the Emmanuel movement that they are carrying out the spirit of Jesus' work and commission when they use for the healing of disease all available power.

"They feel at liberty therefore to use medicine where its need is indicated. But they recognize also that in using medicine we are not utilizing a tithe of the power resident in the universe and in man for the healing of his body.

"It is commonly conceded that many of the ills which afflict people have a mental origin. The disease is not a delusion of mortal mind, as Christian Science intimates. It is real enough, but the cause is mental. Obviously, any treatment to be effective must be applied to the cause itself. Conservative physicians estimate that fully half of the disorders they are called to treat are of mental origin. The physiological results of fear, worry, anger, jealousy, morbid delusions are very well known. These arise within the mind and there is the realm in which they must be treated.

Advance of Psychology.

"Psychology is making much also of the sub-conscious. Here remarkable powers are encountered. Psychology has been able to set no limits to the sub-conscious mind and in it reside well nigh irresistible potencies which rise up to reconstruct the conscious and the visible. Calvinistic theology has long recognized that and turned it to theological account. Thus they have explained regeneration. God comes into man's being below consciousness and the result is seen in the changed direction of his conscious life. Psychology and the Emmanuel movement press this a step farther and affirm that from that region comes power to regenerate a man physically and mentally.

"All these powers are to be employed in the curing of disease. Medicine is to be used when required. A distinction is made between functional and organic troubles and medicine prescribed in the case of the latter. But even then it is recognized that the efficacy of the medicine is dependent very largely upon psychic conditions. Medicine fails in one case and succeeds in another, the deciding factor being apparently the mental attitude of the patient.

Efficacy of Emmanuel Movement.

"It is, however, through the medium of the sub-conscious that greatest results are hoped for and achieved. Its powers are best called into play by faith and to this the appeal is made. The Emmanuel movement takes timid, nervous, worried people, who are broken physically and mentally; it seeks to awaken in them courage, hope and peace which are the natural fruits of faith; it persuades them that the infinite resources of an infinite God are at their disposal, and as the individuals realize this, a new light comes upon the face, a sweet harmony steals over the disordered faculties, disease slips from the body as despair slips from the soul and there is a new birth to health and happiness.

"I have a very high regard for the Emmanuel movement. It gets results. In spirit and purpose it is eminently Christian. On the scientific side it is an application of what such eminent men as Professor Dubois, of the University of Berne, and Dr. A. T. Schofield, of London, have been urging upon the attention of the medical profession in recent books. It receives the unqualified endorsement of such men as Professor James, of Harvard, and Professor Barker, of Johns Hopkins. It seems to me an eminently happy union of religion and science in an effort to make men whole, splendidly whole, mentally, physically, morally, spiritually."

PERFECTION BISCUIT CO.

The Sentinel resumes its free cook book recipes today for the benefit and accommodation of such of its readers as have been saving them for the past eighteen months. The idea in publishing them in this particular form and with order of arrangement was to permit the cutting of them out and pasting them in a book for family use. For that reason many recipes have appeared out of season, as it would be impossible to publish the several hundred necessary for a book otherwise. During the holiday season the recipes were omitted to make room and they will be resumed by several being published at once.

Sentinel's Cook Book

Black Raspberry Shrub

Select the best black caps, put into a jar and pour over them enough of the best cider vinegar to cover. Let stand for thirty-six hours, then strain through cheesecloth, squeezing hard enough to get all the juice. Measure the juice and allow a pound of sugar to every pint of juice. Cook five minutes, bottle and seal while scalding hot. Keep in a cool place. When you wish to serve allow two tablespoonfuls of the shrub to each glass of very cold water. This makes a particularly fine beverage for picnics.

Fruit Punch

Pour one cup fresh hot tea over one cup block sugar and let stand until the sugar is dissolved and the syrup cold. Pour into a punch bowl together with three-quarters of a cup orange juice, one-half cup lemon juice, one pint each ginger ale and apollinaris. Just before serving add slice of orange.

Cherry Shrub

Mash two quarts very ripe pitted cherries through a fruit press. Make a syrup of two pounds sugar and two quarts of water and cook five minutes. Add the cherries and the juice of two lemons, strain and set aside until very cold. Serve with some of the fresh cherries floating on the surface of the shrub.

Latest in Young Girls' Evening Frocks

Lace and Embroidered Yokes and Sleeves Used With Directoire and Princess Dresses.

While evening frocks for young girls must be plain to be considered correct, they need not be void of all ornamentation, for even the strictest follower of etiquette cannot criticise adversely models with lace or embroidered yokes having sleeves to match.

As an illustration of what is appropriate the pictured dresses give an excellent example. The costume of net with the prettily ruffled skirt will look smart if worn by tall, slender girls.

As to the other two frocks, the one with the Greek key design on the skirt would be most effective for a maid of fifteen or sixteen years of age, while the other with the pleated skirt, having broad band of trimming near the bottom, would be most appropriate for young women who are eighteen or twenty years old.

Worn at Winter Resorts

WINTER RESORT BEACH HAT AND LACE WRAP.

The fad for lace coats has been strongly confirmed at Palm Beach, where dozens of these airy wraps are seen in combination with thin afternoon frocks. These lace wraps, of course, are usually in white or cream, though occasionally one is dyed to match a gray or berry colored satin costume. This smart model, on Directoire lines, is of heavy net elaborately braided and embroidered in a lace.

Folds of white liberty satin give body to the edges of the cuffs, collar and lapels and add a rich finish to the garment. To match the lace coat there is a big white satin hat, simply, yet richly trimmed with a cluster of ribbon loops and three long ostrich plumes.

THREATENS SUICIDE IF KEPT FROM HUSBAND

Sad and Very Pitiful Story Presented in Case of Harry Painter.

With her heart broken and her mind distrought by grief over the plight into which her husband has been plunged, Mrs. Harry Painter, the 20-year-old wife of the man arrested for attempting criminal assault on a young woman at the Pennsylvania station two weeks ago, emphatically threatened to kill herself this morning as her husband was taken to jail after having been bound over to the circuit court under a $500 bond. The unfortunate woman had been with her husband ever since his arrest Saturday evening and her grief is uncontrollable.

She was taken into the ante-room of the police court this morning and Mrs. G. I. Cooper, of the Rescue Home Mission, endeavored to pacify her, but it was several hours before she would consent to accompany the wife of the mission superintendent. Several times while in the room she made frantic efforts to get away and reach the side of her husband, at one time slipping out behind Judge Skelton and obtaining a death-like grip on the knob of the door that required four men to break. Her piteous moans could be heard over the entire lower floor and the sympathies of all who saw her were quickly elicited.

She believes in her husband and although realizing his guilt, forgives him readily. Painter is also but 20 years of age.

Confessed to His Crime.

Painter is an employe of the traction company and after being arrested on Saturday evening by Officer Johnson and Pennsylvania Patrolman Easton made a complete confession to Chief Ankenbruck. On the stand this morning he said that he had come here with his wife from Canton but several months ago and was rooming at the corner of Calhoun and Lewis streets. He expressed regret at his actions of two weeks before when he leaped over the fence lining the runway to the women's lavatory at the Pennsylvania station and made an attack upon Miss Louise Schulp and said he could not explain the impulse that prompted beyond that he had had a few drinks and had been watching some girls on the second floor of a hotel situated near the interurban barns.

Painter's hearing today was only preliminary and he will have to appear in the circuit court. Meanwhile Mrs. Cooper will take care of the young wife.

Robbed His Own Brother.

Rudolph Geberding was sent to jail for thirty days and fined $5 and costs this morning on the charge of stealing a lap robe and other livery articles from his brother, who conducts a livery barn. The brother has endeavored to help the weaker man in many ways, but the latter always chose the wrong path and he now has time to brood over his troubles.

Thirty Days for Stealing Cap.

Edward Adkins this morning confessed to stealing the cap of John Rudolphson, who conducts a tailor shop at 1207 Lafayette street, but said he was drunk when he did it. This did not make any material difference to the judge, however, and he was given a fine of $5 and costs and sent to jail for thirty days. Adkins had sold the cap at a Maumee avenue store for 70 cents and Rudolphson recovered it today.

The case against David W. Graves on the charge of defrauding and petit larceny was continued until tomorrow under a $100 bond. The police believe they have a bad character in this Graves and his past record will be investigated as fully as possible. He had been working the traveling man racket here, going into restaurants and saloons and showing a check that he said he could not cash for several days and asking to borrow money on it.

Arrested for Smoking Cigarettes.

It developed in the testimony in the case of Dick Louis on a charge of vagrancy that he was one of the unfortunates who were arrested for the violation of the anti-cigarette law soon after it was passed. Louis committed his offense in Muncie and he said he was given a fine of $1 and costs. Judge Skelton today suspended a fine of $5 and costs.

Louis Rabe, a companion of Louis and arrested on the same charge, also had his sentence suspended, provided he would return to his work on the new Indiana Furniture company building.

Big Grist of Other Cases.

Most of the time of the court was taken up with vags. James Robinson and Joseph Edwards, found around the Nickel Plate depot by Officers Spillner and Dickson, were each given $5 fines. Gustave Stief, another vag arrested by the same officers, had his case continued to Thursday owing to his inability to understand or speak English. He is a Macedonian and one of his race living here will be asked to act as interpreter at his trial.

Adam Leir, a drunk, was let go on the promise that he would return to his home and spend his money on his seven children.

Charles K. Harris is mixed up bad as he failed to pay a fine in October that he promised would come out of his next week's pay and Judge Skelton sent him over to serve it out. When that sentence is completed, Harris will have to face another charge of drunkenness.

Fred Reese was given a fine of $1 and costs for public intoxication.

When Jeffries became tired of a paltry earthly title like that of champion of the world, he gave it away to one of his friends.

It is well written on the books that the man to whom Jeffries gave the title was about as well qualified to hold it as "Dick Deadeye."

It was as certain as the quarrel between congress and the administration that some day there would come along a man with strength and a fair knowledge of boxing who would knock T. Burns' title holdings into a scattered mess, like a rail pile carelessly distributed over a section of western farmland.

The man happened to be Johnson, and, judging by the careful manner in which Johnson was avoided until the price got high enough for Burns to think about a permanent fund for the hotel, it is possible that Burns knew the negro would wear the crown after they had met.

Now various get-rich-quick fight promoters are pestering Jeffries with offers to meet Johnson for the championship.

CONCORDIA WINS IN EASY STYLE BY 83 TO 14

Columbia City Didn't Have a Look-in in the Contest.

Concordia's overwhelming victory over the Columbia City High School Basketball team on Saturday night demonstrated that the college boys have vastly improved in their work in all departments of the game and the score of 83 to 14 was not surprising as the collegians proved in the first five minutes of play that they were in superb form and were out for a victory.

No high school team in the state could have stood up under the rapid and accurate passing and unerring aim of the Concordia five. The visitors were kept on the defensive during both halves and never did they have at any time an opportunity to show what they could do at shooting baskets because they had the ball so seldom no line could be obtained on their work.

Carnarius starred through the entire engagement, not only by his fast foot work, but by his throwing which was short of marvelous. His eye was in good trim and, although the Columbia City crowd recognized him as the most dangerous opponent they were unable to smother him and he shot seventeen field goals during the evening and many of them were difficult.

In this he was ably assisted by the other members of the team and Sauer ran him a pretty close second, securing ten dandy shots. The passing of the college boys was marvelously fast and true at all times and Columbia City was played off its feet in a few minutes after the whistle blew for the opening.

Both teams played clean basketball all the way through and few fouls were called by the officials. The line-up and scores:

Concordia (83)	Positions.	Col. City (14)
Benz	L. F.	Leininger
Hildner	R. F.	Gates
Carnarius	C.	White
A. Sauer	L. G.	Diffendarfer
Schupmann	R. G.	Veit

Summary—

Field goals—Carnarius, 17; A. Sauer, 10; Hildner, 7; Benz, 3; Schupmann, 3; Gates, 3; White, 3. Baskets from foul—Schupmann, 2. Fouls—Concordia, 4; Columbia City, 6. Points awarded to Concordia, 1; Columbia City, 2. Referee—Voss. Timekeeper—Palmreuter. Scorers—Koch, Foerster. Umpire—Wiese.

Second Five Wins.

The Concordia second five trimmed the crippled Fort Wayne High school five 46 to 9, in the preliminary skirmish. The feature of this contest was the remarkable work of Rodenbeck, who was easily the best performer of the two teams. Not only did he shine in the matter of shooting goals, but his fast passing and offensive and defensive work marked him as one of the best basketball players in the city. The whole five worked in good form throughout and showed the result of constant practice. The line-up and score:

Concordia (46)	Positions.	Blues (9)
Rodenbeck	L. F.	Parker
Graf	R. F.	Wise
R. Sauer	C.	Gerny
Feddersen	L. G.	Swain
Fiess	R. G.	Skelly

Summary—

Field goals—Rodenbeck, 9; Graf, 4; R. Sauer, 4; Feddersen, 1; Fiess, 1; Parker, 2; Wise, 2. Baskets from foul—R. Sauer, 4; Feddersen, 2; Graf, 1; Wise, 1. Fouls—Concordia II, 3; Blues, 12. Referee—A. Sauer. Scorers—Koch, Foerster.

DROPPED FROM THE CIRCUIT.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 18.—LaCrosse and Wausau, Wis., were dropped from the Wisconsin-Illinois Association of Baseball clubs at a special meeting of the board of directors which lasted until an early hour this morning. The new line-up takes in the following cities:

Appleton, Racine, Oshkosh, Fon du Lac, Madison and Green Bay in Wisconsin, and Rockford and Freeport in Illinois.

PHILLIPS NAMED BY WHEELING FOR MANAGER

Old Leaguer Will Take Charge of the Stogie Ball Team.

Wheeling, W. Va., Jan. 18.—President Benjamin Franklin Perkins, before his departure for the South Bend meeting of the Centra league directors last night, announced that the deal by which Big Bill Phillips will take charge of the local club next season has been practically completed and although it is likely some coin will have to be put up to secure the big leaguer, the club owners will not stop at that.

Things in the Ohio-Pennsylvania league are a bit chaotic just now and there is no telling just where the manager is "at," but there is no longer any doubt that he will be the Stogie leader during the season of 1909. With the announcement fresh interest has been awakened in Wheeling and hopes are entertained that the team will make a showing in the Central league race next season.

There is plenty of good material in the club and the owners have added a lot of promising young blood which needs the wise head of an old leaguer to develop and with a man at the helm who knows all about the game some good ball is looked for.

Phillips is a pitcher and led the league last season, while his team was the contender all through the year for the pennant, finishing second. He worked in twenty-two games and won eighteen of them and took his regular turn in the box right along with his other men.

Wheeling has been sorely in need of a high-class manager for two years and the club owners announce they are through with experimenting. They think they have in Phillips a man who will deliver the goods and they are willing to pay him a good salary to do it.

LOCAL BOWLERS ORGANIZE.

Association Formed to Send Men to the Bowling Congress.

The local bowlers had a meeting yesterday at which the Fort Wayne Bowling association was organized, with Ben Ungemach as president, Ara Tonkel, secretary; C. G. Schiefer, treasurer, and George Ryan, delegate to the national congress.

The organization will send two or possibly three teams to the meeting at Pittsburg next month, and the association was formed for the purpose of making the teams eligible. There was an old charter here but the best bowlers of the city have pulled away from this because no public alleys will send teams, and on account of great dissatisfaction that has existed for about a year.

Bowlers have determined to control their own affairs in Fort Wayne and with the exception of a very few among the high-class men they will send their own representation to the congress. This was brought about by the fact that the bowlers as a rule would not enter the only league that is now in existence in the city.

KAYLOR PUTS HIS SIG TO CONTRACT WITH DAYTON TEAM

Hard Hitting Shamrock is to be Given Tryout by Bade Myers.

Ted Kaylor, the Fort Wayne Shamrock's hard-hitting left fielder, today affixed his signature to a Dayton contract, and will be given an opportunity by Manager Bade Myers to make good in the Central league. The Old Soldiers may secure a prize in the Fort Wayne boy. He is a natural hitter, meeting the ball like Billy Cherry did while with the semi-pros. When Captain Cherry left Fort Wayne, Manager Mart Cleary picked Kaylor from the best of the local boys, to fill the hole in the hitting department, caused by the loss of Cherry. He made good from the start, and his batting in the five-game championship series the Shamrocks played with the Van Wert L.-O. leaguers was a big feature in bringing to Fort Wayne the independent championship of Ohio and Indiana. The chance with the Old Soldiers was secured for Kaylor on the recommendation of the Shamrock manager, who is satisfied he will stick. Ted is a left-hand hitter, and looks like another Winnie Osborne when it comes to clouting the ball. Bade Myers has great success in developing youngsters, a fact which will prove of much benefit to the Fort Wayne boy.

ARRANGING THE SCHEDULES.

National and American League Magnates in Session.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 18.—President Harry C. Pulliam, of the National Baseball league; President Ban Johnson, of the American league; Secretary Robert McRoy of the American, and Charles Ebbetts, of Brooklyn, and Barney Dreyfuss, of Pittsburg, National league owners, met here today to arrange the major league schedules for the 1909 season. Haste was made so that the work could be completed today. No announcement of the schedule arrangements will be made in detail until April.

Both Johnson and Pulliam had prepared in advance tentative schedules. Conflicting dates in the five cities having both American and National league teams were straightened out.

VARNELL UNABLE TO ATTEND THE BIG MEETING

Fort Wayne Owner Detained at Home by Illness of Wife.

Claude H. Varnell, owner of the Fort Wayne ball team, wired from his home in Wheeling last night that he would be unable to attend the meeting at South Bend today on account of the illness of Mrs. Varnell. He did not indicate in his message whether or not his wife was dangerously ill, but the fact that he will remain away from an important gathering like the one at South Bend points to the conclusion that her sickness is serious.

Mr. Varnell gave his proxy to Manager Jack Hendricks who will represent him at the directors meeting today. The Fort Wayne owner is one of the strongest advocates of a late opening and a longer season and he had some deep-seated convictions on these two points which he would have probably unfolded to the magnates had he been present, but in view of the expressed sentiment of other owners it is not likely that his presence would have brought about a longer schedule, but it might have materially aided in pushing along the late project.

Then there are a number of deals that Mr. Varnell and his manager had in view, or rather both were going to the meeting with the intention of placing several men on the market provided there was any good cash or good ball players that somebody wanted to swap. The manager, however, can attend to this end of the work, and if it comes up to a point of trading, he can deliver the goods.

President Pulliam is in favor of there being a single trophy after this for world's series championships instead of individual trophies. "Players come and go, but the club remains," he says. Besides, the plan would do away with a lot of unseemly grumbling by the players over their trophies.

The New York American league club has a perfect claim to the services of Joe Ward, according to President Pulliam, which means Philadelphia has no claim except in imagination. Shettsline of the Phillies, wanted Mr. Pulliam to re-open the case before the national commission, but Pulliam refused to do so, telling the Philadelphia claimant that he would have to get some other member of the commission to do so if the case was to be re-opened at all.—New York Sun.

Much is expected of young Quinn, the Richmond, Va., pitcher secured by the New York Americans. He pitched sixteen games for Richmond and did not lose one. He won fourteen and had two ties. Less than two runs to a game were made against him, and he had an average of about six and one-half hits to a game. He made only two errors and had only twenty-five passes and four wild pitches. Besides all this merit, he hit for .294.

Story Corner for Base Ball Fans

Baseball authorities are now scouting around for the most ancient baseball and historians are digging into musty volumes to find who pitched the first no-hit game. According to Elmer Bates Jimmy Galvin, who achieved much fame on the diamond as a pitcher, was the first twirler to accomplish this feat.

Bates has dug up a man who declares that Galvin turned the trick in 1876, and it has been discovered that a Philadelphian played in the celebrated game. The player who helped Galvin establish the record because he didn't poke out a safe hit is Jack Bennett, who is now one of the chief rooters of the Athletics.

"Do you know," said Bennett. "I played in the game in which Galvin made his record in 1876? The article was wrong, though, in referring to 'Silver' Flint as having caught Galvin in that game. Pat Dolan did the catching for Galvin that day. The game was played at Ionia, Mich., Galvin pitching for the St. Louis Red Stockings against the Cass club of Detroit, of which I was the shortstop.

"There was a week's tournament at Ionia for $2,000 in prizes, of which $1,000 was to go to the winning team. On Friday night the Cass team and the Red Stockings were tied and we decided to play two games the next day.

"As a matter of fact we played three games and the tourney ended in a tie, for each of us won and the third resulted in an even score. In was in the second game that afternoon that Galvin made his no-hit record, the score being 2 to 0 in favor of the Red Stockings. Galvin pitched the first two games and 'Trick' McSorley, who was a shortstop and change pitcher for St. Louis, twirled the third.

"The tourney was played on the fair grounds, on which there was a fairly good diamond, except at shortstop. There was a regular scoop at that point and the shortstop either had to play in close to the pitcher, or else far out toward the left field. I played close in and handled 14 chances, for I got those belonging to me as well as those that belonged to the pitcher. In those days we didn't wear gloves and they used lively balls, too.

"In addition to Galvin, McSorley and Dolan, the St. Louis Red Stockings had on the team Jack Gleason at third base and Joe Blong in left field.

"Dell Kurtz was the Cass team's pitcher in the famous game, and 'Sunny' Hoffman caught. Charley Howard, who was a player much on the order of Harry Davis, and who is now cashier in a bank at Detroit, was the first baseman. Dan O'Leary, who afterward brought out Flint and 'Only' Nolan, the famous pitcher, was our right fielder.

"The crowds that turned out were enormous for those days, six or seven thousand persons being present at each game."

IN THE THEATERS

Perhaps no more interesting play has been given by Our Own Stock company than the one which will be put on today and tomorrow. It is Ibsen's "A Doll's House," the fine play which Madame Nazimova and her company produced in the same playhouse a few weeks ago. Miss Dunbar will be seen as Nora and Mr. Huntington as Helmer. The play should be seen several times, for Ibsen's drama requires study and as neither the lines nor the situations are always interpreted alike by either those who read the play or who act it, it becomes all the more interesting as a performance to see a number of times. Besides the play as literature, is so beautiful, that the mere hearing of the lines gives pleasure. Our Own Stock company should be able to produce it with the element of the artistic predominating and people who were unable to hear the Russian star when she was here will find great pleasure and benefit in seeing a high class drama at popular prices.

As Benjamine Monnier in "The Richest Girl," Miss Marie Doro, who appears at the Majestic on Wednesday night, in many ways surpasses any characterization she has yet essayed. In her second year of stardom, she gains steadily in popular affection, and in artistic advancement as well, so that at the present time there is full reason to congratulate this dainty little woman on her material as well as her artistic successes. The play itself, while of French inspiration, has never been acted in the original conception. It was declared in Boston, that Miss Doro had achieved the greatest triumph of her brief but brilliant career in this role. The lines are particularly clever, the situations amusing, and the minor characters shrewdly drawn. Mr. Orrin Johnson, who has been especially engaged, will appear as Paul Normand, the youthful government clerk, who unwittingly becomes the victim of Benjamine's caprices.

It is a genuine pleasure to announce the return of that delightful musical comedy, "The Royal Chef," which comes to the Majestic Thursday, Jan. 21, matinee and night. During its former engagement in this city this mirthful and thoroughly diverting work made an impression upon all who witnessed it, which will not soon be effaced. Many new and original musical numbers have been interpolated, and many new comedy bits have been introduced to give freshness to the performance.

Otis Skinner on Saturday.

Otis Skinner will be seen on Saturday, matinee and night performances, in his great success, "The Honor of the Family." Mr. Skinner was seen at the Majestic in the same play a few months ago and people who saw the entertainment were delighted in every way. It was one of the greatest theatrical productions of a brilliant season at the Majestic. So there is no question of the large and intellectual audience who appreciate a fine play and one of the greatest living actors of the country. Mr. Skinner will be supported by Miss Percy Haswell, who has made a deep and powerful impression in her role as it is one of exceptional strength.

Francis Carlyle, one of the handsomest and most magnetic of leading men, and that rare character artist, A. G. Andrews, who was with Richard Mansfield for fifteen years are also prominent in Mr. Skinner's company.

"The Lost Wife."

"The Lost Wife," Henry Hamilton's great society drama, which is the Lyric's offering this week, opened this afternoon and afforded the opportunity for the introduction of Miss Belle Barchus, the new leading woman of the Lyric Stock company. Miss Barchus appears in the roles of Brenda Musgrave and Mrs. Marston, which are said to afford her exceptional chance for effective work. William Jossey takes the part of Roy Marston and the other roles are also strongly cast. The management feels that in the high class piece they have one of the best offerings of the entire season and an unusual effort has been made to stage the production. The play is a highly emotional one but the tensity is relieved by some fine comedy and a high moral plane is carried through the story.

SUCCESSFUL WOMEN PRACTIONERS IN THE NEW YORK CRIMINAL COURTS

WHEN the clerk in Essex Market Police Court, Magistrate Daniel E. Finn presiding, called the case of the People vs. Rosenstein, charged with felonious assault, Selig complainant, and announced "Mrs. Sophie Mayer, counsel for the defendant!" a woman of middle age arose from the lawyers' seats and approached the bench. Rather above medium height, with a strong, intellectual face, and attired in becoming black, but wearing little ornamentation, her department that of grave self-possession, she seemed strangely out of place among the shabby occupants of the gloomy court room. The masculine part of the Essex Market bar, the policemen and the court attendants, deferentially made way for her as she entered the railed in enclosure before the seat of justice and composedly returned the judge's bow.

When the clerk asked Mrs. Mayer if she was ready to proceed with the trial she turned toward a pretty domestic group on one of the front seats of the court auditorium. Its centre was a jovial little black haired man, who wore a winning smile. On the other side of him was his loving wife, an affectionate sister on the other, and two curly headed children clung confidently to his knees. It seemed unbelievable, when Mrs. Mayer addressed the jovial little man as the defendant in the case, that any one should have made so obvious and painful an error as to charge him with anything felonious—much less felonious assault. The tenderness with which his dear wife and sweet children kissed him when he left them to take an undeserved place in the prisoner's dock of itself was sufficient to prove him incapable of an unkind deed to any one. The dignified respect with which Mrs. Mayer greeted him was corroborative evidence of his moral worth.

The plaintiff in the case of the People vs. Rosenstein was a tall and unkempt man of lachrymose countenance, whose head was done up in white surgeon's linen from below his brick red ears, those organs protruding at right angles and giving him a startled expression from the rear. As a general thing the amount of bandaging worn by a complainant in a police court is in inverse ratio to the seriousness of any injury he may have sustained. Indeed, it frequently occurs, after a court officer has unwound many yards of bandaging, the wearer moaning and shrieking and giving every other evidence of acute agony as the potential wound comes closer to official inspection, that no injury at all is discernible. In the case of Selig, however, physical examination was unnecessary, since the ambulance surgeon who had put the bandages on was in court to testify to the nature of the wounds underneath.

The story of the complainant was that he had gone into a saloon in Delancey street a week before and ordered a drink of whiskey, which had been placed before him on the bar. Just as he was on the point of drinking it, he declared, a man standing behind him had put something in the glass. Believing that the stuff was knock-out drops, he averred, he threw the glass and its contents on the floor, whereupon the proprietor—none other than the jovial little black haired man, he swore—had reached over the bar and knocked him down with a bottle. He recalled nothing more, he said, until he found himself in the police station, whence he was removed to Gouverneur Hospital in an ambulance.

MRS. MAYER'S cross-examination was brief. Contrary to legal usage in the Essex Market Court—where the lawyer who does not exercise his full prerogative as to the personal abuse of opposing principals and witnesses is likely to lose the good will of his clients—she did not bully the complainant. Having brought out the fact that Selig was six feet and an inch tall, and that the defendant was only five feet and four inches, while the injuries he had received were on the top of his head, she asked the former:—"Did you bend your head down, when, as you allege, Mr. Rosenstein struck you with the bottle?"

He had not.

"Did the defendant stand on a chair to strike you?"

He had not stood on a chair; he had struck him from behind the bar.

The prisoner at the bar had listened with pitying complaisance to the story of the complainant, frequently appealing to the ceiling in pantomime or turning to smile benignantly upon his loved ones, listening horror stricken to the awful calumnies. He explained matters with great volubility when Mrs. Mayer put him on the witness stand. He had kept that saloon in Delancey street, which might be called a quiet little family resort rather than a saloon, for more than twenty years, and it was a matter of frequent comment in the neighborhood that no trouble had ever occurred there. Indeed, the neighbors often said that he was too good natured. On the evening that the lachrymose man, who was not only an old customer but a friend, for whom he had always expressed the highest respect, as the same neighbors would testify if requested to do so—on that evening that his friend and customer had met with his unfortunate and regrettable accident in the family resort in Delancey street, he had not been standing at the bar at all, but was seated at a table with Mrs. Rosenstein and two other friends of the house, with all of whom he was on friendly terms, and who would all testify to the facts as now related.

As to his having struck the lachrymose man from behind the bar, the jovial little man smilingly continued, he had only just come into the saloon from his living apartments upstairs as the lamentable accident occurred, and had not yet gone behind the bar at all. In fact, as he reached the foot of the stairs he saw the complainant take his glass from the table—not the bar—and throw it on the floor, after which he picked up a bottle from the table and hurled that down also, smashing it into fragments. He, the proprietor, ran up to the table in surprise to inquire what was the matter, when the complainant—who the defendant afterward learned to his regret was somewhat under the influence of liquor—suddenly started back and fell from his chair on his head right into the jagged pieces of the broken bottle. The saloon keeper, much distressed about his friend's injuries, had advised him to go at once to a physician and have his wounds dressed, and his surprise and grief might be imagined when he learned that the other had gone to the police station instead, obviously under alcoholic hallucination as to the cause of his hurts, and made a complaint against him.

Rosenstein's story was corroborated by his wife and the two friends of the house aforementioned, who were alleged to have been at the table with the complainant at the time he received his injuries. Judge Finn, however, asked a great many embarrassing questions, and it was particularly difficult for him to understand how, in the event of a man falling from an ordinary chair into broken glass, the top of his head should be lacerated. His Honor expressed the opinion that in order that Selig should obtain the injuries described by the ambulance surgeon he would have been compelled to stand up on the chair and dive into the glass.

TO prove that it was entirely probable that an inebriated person, as she claimed the complainant to have been, would perform an involuntary acrobatic figure that would land him on the exact top of his head in falling from a chair to the floor, Mrs. Mayer called the ambulance surgeon, a clean cut, fair haired youngster in fresh linen and smart blue serge, likewise a sharp contrast to his surroundings. The youthful medico, who saw more humor than gravity in the situation, confining his responses to a professional "yes" and "no," was made to admit that it was within the outer confines of remote possibility that Selig in dropping from a chair eighteen inches high made a complete corporeal revolution before striking the floor.

Triumphantly now Mrs. Mayer demanded the acquittal of the prisoner, on the grounds, first, that it was a physical impossibility for a man only five feet four inches tall to strike a man six feet one inch tall on the top of the head, and, second, that it had been proved that the complainant had sustained his injuries by falling from his chair into the broken glass on the floor. However, Judge Finn had not yet got through with the witnesses. He craftily called the three before him separately and questioned each one minutely, out of the hearing of the others, as to the size of the table at which they alleged they were sitting, its relative position to the bar and the distance from it; how many were at the table altogether and how long they had been sitting there when the accident occurred. The result was that each one of the three told an entirely different story as to everything except the main incident—the breaking of the bottle and the falling of the complainant into the fragments.

The little saloon keeper ceased to be a jovial person entirely when Judge Finn held him for trial, and the murderous expression of his countenance as he glared at the complainant made it quite possible to believe that he might have felled him with the bottle after all and then manufactured the story of the fall on the broken glass and induced his wife and his two friends to swear to it. His bail bond being signed, he angrily hustled his loving wife, affectionate sister and dear little children out of the courtroom.

Judge Finn took occasion to compliment Mrs. Mayer on her conduct of the case. "I'm sorry that I couldn't decide it your way," he said, "but I believed Rosenstein guilty as soon as I saw him posed with his family before the examination. That might have worked before a jury, but not with a police magistrate."

"I advised against it," replied Mrs. Mayer. "However, he may have better luck in Sessions." (It may be remarked, incidentally, that she procured her client's acquittal before that tribunal).

When Mrs. Mayer had bowed with great dignity to the Bench, acknowledged the Essex Market bar with a slight inclination of the head, and swept out of court, Judge Finn remarked that he wished the other lawyers who practised in the police courts would take a lesson from her in courtesy.

"There are a lot of police court lawyers," he declared; "who would have antagonized that ambulance surgeon in the Rosenstein case from pure force of habit, and then his evidence would have gone against them. Mrs. Mayer made him her witness by her politeness, in spite of her persistence. If some of these police court bullies knew how much better off they might be by learning ordinarily decent manners, it would be a good thing all round."

THE other police court judges, as well as the occupants of the bench of the General and Special Sessions Courts, hold a high opinion of Mrs. Mayer, who may claim the distinction of being the only woman lawyer practising in the criminal courts in New York to-day. Her aptitude is the more remarkable, in that she was admitted to the Bar only three years ago, she being at that time the mother of six children, the eldest of whom was graduated from the College of the City of New York this year, and is destined for the legal profession. In private life Mrs. Mayer is Mrs. Adolph H. Mayer, and her husband is also a lawyer, having taken his first degree in Germany, where the pair were married. It was her husband's failing eyesight that suggested to Mrs. Mayer to take up the study of law, in order that she might assist him in his practice. She took up the criminal end of it, she frankly admits, because it is easier, requiring less preparation than in civil cases. "Then you are surer of being paid for your services," she said, naïvely. "A man will always get money if he possibly can to prevent being locked up."

Mrs. Mayer's clients thus far have been mostly of the masculine gender. One of theme was Fortgang, the agent and salesman of a manufacturing concern, who was accused of the embezzlement of $600, and whose acquittal she procured in Special Sessions a few weeks ago. She was not so successful in the Shapiro bigamy case, the defendant having one wife and family in Russia and two more in America. Mrs. Mayer tried the case last April before Judge O'Sullivan in General Sessions, but proof against the prisoner was too clear, and he was sentenced to two and a half years in prison.

Only recently Mrs. Mayer was able to turn the tables on a "Fagin," as the police call the scoundrels who teach little east side boys to steal. On this occasion her client was a boy named Elstein, who had been arrested on a charge of pocket picking brought by a man named Stein. Mrs. Mayer learned from the boy that Stein had taught him to steal in the first place, but she reserved this information until Elstein was brought to trial, which was before Judge Zeller in Special Sessions. On the boy's evidence Stein was arrested in court, and, being tried, he received the full penalty for his offence.

While Mrs. Mayer has been unusually successful during her three years' practice of law, she is not enthusiastic about the criminal branch of it. Her offices are with those of her husband, at No. 105 Attorney street.

ALTHOUGH, however, Mrs. Mayer is the only woman lawyer practising in the criminal courts to-day she has had two predecessors. They were Miss Mary Coleman and Miss Ida Primhoff, the latter of whom fell in love with another lawyer, and, becoming Mrs. Reuben Dorfman, now permits her husband to practise law for both.

Miss Coleman, who is famous as a suffragette, as well as in the legal profession, has recently taken up civil law exclusively, because she finds it more to her taste, but her record during the few years she devoted herself to criminal practice is one that few lawyers of either sex, at her age, have equalled. She has tried four murder cases, as well as innumerable others, such as arson, burglary, larceny, highway robbery, having, in fact, defended men charged with nearly every crime in the calendar. It was Miss Coleman who defended the negro, John Davis, known as "the Lamplighter," by reason of his length and lack of breadth, charged with murder during the "race riots" on the west side in the summer of 1900. Davis was tried twice the following year, the jury disagreeing on the first occasion and acquitting him on the next.

Another murder case tried by Miss Coleman was that of Grace Galloway, an English gipsy, who killed her husband in a fit of jealous rage at Forty-sixth street and Eleventh avenue. The lawyer believed from the first that her client was insane, but every alienist who examined her declared that the woman was of sound mind, and she was consequently compelled to stand trial. Miss Coleman got her off with a verdict of manslaughter, and within a year the gipsy was found to be hopelessly insane, and was sent to the Matteawan Asylum. Wherefore her lawyer claims that she was wiser than the medical experts on that occasion.

In 1902 Miss Coleman was called to Poughkeepsie to defend John Brennan, charged with murder in killing a man he was told had slandered his mother. Public opinion was in his favor, and he was convicted of simple assault, receiving a light sentence. The following year Miss Coleman defended another negro charged with murder in New York, and procured his acquittal.

Miss Coleman is a member of the firm of Coleman & Coleman, in the Barclay Building, the other member being Captain Hugh Coleman, her father. How she came to take up the practice of criminal law is best told in her own words.

"JUST after I had been admitted to the Bar," she said, "I was asked by papa one day to go into Judge Cowing's court and obtain the adjournment of a case in which he (papa) appeared for the defence. The case was that of a woman whose name I have forgotten, but who was known to the police as 'Hatpin Jenny,' because of a playful little trick she had of using a hatpin as a weapon when under the influence of alcoholic stimulants.

"When the case was called and I suggested an adjournment Judge Cowing suggested that I try it myself. I told him that I didn't know anything about it, but he assured me that it was a very simple one, and said that if I would see the defendant in the city prison I would probably be able to learn all its merits and demerits in a few moments. I made some inquiries of the Assistant District Attorney who had charge of the prosecution of the case, and learned that 'Hatpin Jenny' was charged with malicious mischief, in that she had broken the plate glass window, worth $100, at two o'clock in the morning, of a saloon where she had been refused liquid refreshment. At the preliminary trial in the Police Court the proprietor and the bartender had sworn that she had been ordered to leave the saloon half an hour before the window was broken, and that she had departed vowing vengeance upon them. The policeman who arrested her had sworn that he saw her hurl a brick through the glass.

"I was advised to advise Jenny to plead guilty and receive a shorter sentence than if she were convicted after a trial. I called upon her, but she absolutely refused to accept this advice. She told me that she had never been in the saloon in all her life and that the reason the policeman arrested her was because she had refused to give him her pocketbook. The brick had been thrown at her by the policeman, she declared, and had gone through the window, and the proprietor of the saloon and his barkeeper were perjuring themselves, and when Judge Cowing asked her what she was doing in the street at two o'clock in the morning she said that she was coming home from work.

"'What do you work at?' the Judge asked.

"'I work at dish washin', Jedge, yer anner,' she told him.

"'Do you work until two o'clock in the morning?' he inquired.

"'Yes, Jedge, yer anner,' she declared, 'I work from seven in the morning until two o'clock in the morning every day of the week except Sundays, and that's longer hours than you work yourself, Jedge, yer anner.'

"By this time she had every one in court laughing, and her answers to the Assistant District Attorney on cross-examination were so witty that the jury became interested in her. She had assured me on her sacred word of honor in her cell that the policeman had not arrested her until ten minutes after the window was broken and that the saloon keeper and bartender had held her until he arrived. Consequently when the policeman was called to the stand and testified that he had seen her throw the brick I made up my mind that he was not telling the truth, and after a long cross-examination I got him so tangled up that he contradicted himself over and over again. The result was that 'Hat Pin Jenny' was acquitted, although she told papa afterward that of course she threw the brick through the window and was glad of it."

Her experiment with the policeman at "Hatpin Jenny's" trial had shown Miss Coleman that the criminal courts afforded an excellent school for the study of cross-examination, and she decided to take up criminal cases with a view to obtaining experience in that direction. Afterward so much criminal work came in upon her that it was difficult to get back to the practice of civil law.

"Practice in the criminal courts," she says, "always has an unpleasant side. I think that it was my experience defending Grace Galloway that determined me to leave that branch of the profession, however. Day and night during her imprisonment and trial I felt a fearful burden of responsibility in that another woman's life was to a certain extent dependent upon my efforts."

Miss Coleman is a graduate of St. Gabriel's Seminary. She studied law in her father's office and in the New York University Law School. She was admitted to the bar in 1899—when she was sixteen years old, according to present indications. In spite of her youthful appearance and girlish vivacity she is an impressive figure in court. Her method is tense, pointed and direct, her language concise and her manner confident. Those who have heard her address a hostile audience on the woman suffrage question cannot but admire her courage and determination

GRIPPE VICTIM

Restored to Health and Strength by Vinol After All Other Means Had Failed.

PROFESSOR HICKS' STORY.

"I suffered from a severe attack of the grippe which left me in a weakened condition with bronchitis, a soreness in my chest and a hacking cough. I tried different physicians and took nearly every kind of cough syrup sold on the market without getting any permanent relief. I saw your cod liver and iron preparation—Vinol—advertised, and decided to try it, and it completely cured my bronchial trouble and restored my strength. I cannot say too much for Vinol, as I received inexpressible benefit from its use, and I consider it one of the greatest blessings ever offered to the public." R. E. R. Hicks, Maplesville, Ala.

The grippe invariably leaves in its wake a weakened, run-down condition of the system. Vinol is guaranteed to restore the sufferer to health and strength, and to build up and create strength for old people, delicate children and weak, debilitated people. So sure are we of this that we unhesitatingly say give Vinol a trial. If you think it does you no good we will refund your money, but it will. Meyer Bros. Co., druggists, Fort Wayne. Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington, rector of Grace church, Broadway, New York, found a check for $40,000 under his plate at breakfast the other morning.

CAME NEAR CHOKING TO DEATH

A little boy, the son of Chris. D. Peterson, a well known resident of the village of Jacksonville, Iowa, had a sudden and violent attack of croup. Much thick stringy phlegm came up after giving Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Mr. Peterson says: "I think he would have choked to death had we not given him this remedy." For sale by all druggists.

ONE MILLION DOLLARS FOR A GOOD STOMACH

This Offer Should Be a Warning to Every Man and Woman.

The newspapers and medical journals recently have had much to say relative to a famous millionaire's offer of a million dollars for a new stomach.

This great multi-millionaire was too busy to worry about the condition of his stomach. He allowed his dyspepsia to run from bad to worse until in the end it became incurable.

His misfortune serves as a warning to others.

Everyone who suffers with dyspepsia for a few years will give everything he owns for a new stomach.

Dyspepsia is caused by an abnormal state of the gastric juices. There is one element missing. The absence of this destroys the function of the gastric fluids. They lose their power to digest food.

We are now able to supply the missing element—to resore to the gastric juices their digestive power, and to make the stomach strong and well.

We know that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will positively and permanently cure disordered stomachs, indigestion and dyspepsia.

We want you to try them and will return your money if you are not more than satisfied with the result.

GERMAN AMERICAN NATIONAL BANK

In our last sworn report to the Comptroller of the Currency, it appears that the deposits in our SAVINGS DEPARTMENT amounted on the date of the report to something over $201,000. This amount has been deposited by some five or six thousand men, women and children. Are you one of them? If not, why not? A SAVINGS account is a friend in need, a friend indeed. FOUR PER CENT interest paid, and it is as safe as all the safeguards of a national bank can make it.

NINETEEN CHARTER MEMBERS.

Local Lodge of Theatrical Mechanics' Association in Existence.

Nineteen members were enrolled on the charter list of the local lodge of the Theatrical Mechanics' association formed at a meeting Sunday afternoon on the stage of the Temple theater. Owing to the fact that both of the other theaters were being used, the attendance was not as large as expected, but the charter will be kept open for ninety days and it is hoped that every stage employe in the city will place his name upon it by that time.

Of the officers of the lodge, the president and secretary were chosen yesterday, R. J. Stetter, of the Temple, being made president and H. D. McConahy secretary. The remaining officers will not be elected until a later meeting. Those that enrolled yesterday are Ronald Dawson, R. J. Stetter, H. D. McConahy, H. E. Dunfee, W. G. Walter, P. J. Cahill, A. Liebman, O. W. Volland, E. Clayton, G. A. Loucks, C. A. Wells, Fred Lynch, P. W. Riley, O. P. Jackson, R. S. Hanna, J. G. Leslie, Charles Kibiger, Charles Koeble and Harry Triskett. F. E. Stouder, M. E. Rice and Luke Balfe, managers of the three local theaters, were enrolled as honorary members.

SENATOR RANKE GIVEN BILL.

Will Present Measure for New Armory to the Legislature.

The bill which was framed by a committee from the Fort Wayne Armory association to be presented to the legislature to secure an appropriation for an armory was placed in the hands of Senator Ranke at the meeting held Sunday afternoon in the battery headquarters on Calhoun street. Senator Ranke is chairman of the committee on military affairs and being the former captain of the battery, is especially fitted to present the bill. He was given power to alter the bill in any way he sees fit and it will probably go before the legislature this week.

The meeting Sunday was very well attended, every one present evidencing considerable enthusiasm over the project. Besides Senator Ranke, there were Senator Fleming and Representatives Roggen and Wells at the meeting. The solons all pledged their earnest support of the matter, but explained to the meeting that the measure may meet failure, as an armory of the nature planned for this city would be an innovation in this state and therefore it will probably have some opposition from the legislature.

THE SHOP AND RAILROAD NEWS

WILL QUIT RAILROAD.

Noble Sappenfield Resigns at Wabash Freight Office.

Last Friday Noble D. Sappenfield tendered his resignation to Agent A. L. Gilbert, of the Wabash, the same to take effect next Saturday. Mr. Sappenfield has accepted a position with the Holley-Baker Lumber company, of Sikeston, Mo., and will soon go to that city to take up his new duties. The young man has been in railway work several years, coming here about eighteen months ago to take a clerical position in the freight office with Agent Gilbert. He had been previously employed at Mitchell, Ind., by the Monon company. H. B. Moser, who until a few weeks ago was employed in the Evansville and Terre Haute offices at Terre Haute, has been employed to take the position soon to be vacated by Mr. Sappenfield. Mr. Moser has been employed in the Wabash freight office as a relief clerk for several weeks. He is a Fort Wayne man, but had been employed elsewhere several months.

UNION LABOR ENTERTAINMENT.

Meeting at the Lyric Filled the House to Overflowing.

The entertainment given at the Lyric theater yesterday afternoon by the Boot and Shoe Workers' union in the interest of union labor drew a crowd that filled every seat in the large playhouse and put standing room at a premium. The main feature of the entertainment was a lecture by Charles J. McMorrow, one of the leading trades union advocates of the country, who made a strong plea for the union labor cause and showed how it could be advanced and the sweat-shops, convict labor and other evils abolished. He urged the cooperation of all trades unions with the Women's Union Label League and stated that union men and the members of their families could advance their interests wonderfully by buying only such articles as bear the union labor label. Women, who do the greater portion of the shopping for the family, he said, should insist on labor union goods and Mr. McMorrow told his audience where and how to find the label on the article it covered. The various labels of the unions were thrown upon the canvas, interspersed with moving pictures and illustrated songs. Mr. McMorrow also referred to the Gompers-Mitchell-Morrison affair, looking upon the matter from the organized labor standpoint, and sought to show that the decision of Judge Wright was a blow at free speech and a free press. The entertainment was free, the Boot and Shoe Workers furnishing the various features of it and Manager Balfe generously donating the use of the playhouse.

COMRADES 35 YEARS AGO.

Three Railroaders Meet and Talk Over Old Times.

A happy little incident last Friday evening was the meeting at the Hayes hotel of three men who were members of the same train crew on the Grand Rapids and Indiana road thirty-five years ago. They were William Smith, an engineer; L. H. Johnson, a conductor, and William Robinson, a fireman, all members of the crew of a work train between Grand Rapids and Paris, Mich. Mr. Smith is still actively employed as engineer on the G. R. & I., running in and out of Fort Wayne, but residing in Grand Rapids. Mr. Robinson is also railroading, but is employed at present by the Erie, with headquarters in Huntington. Mr. Johnson long ago retired from steam railway and took up street railway work. For seventeen years he was a foreman of one of the departments of the city street car line, but at present is engaged in the oil business in the city. The meeting Friday evening continued two or three hours and was characterized by a review of the old time associations of the men who participated in it.

WATER SCARCITY SERIOUS.

Another Supply Source on Nickel Plate Exhausted.

The water famine which has prevailed on the Nickel Plate for several months took on more serious form yesterday when the creek at Payne, Ohio, which heretofore was an inexhaustible source of supply, went dry. A water train is now engaged in hauling water from the Auglaize river and putting it in the tanks at Payne. This water is very hard and bad for steam generating purposes and as a result engines "die" daily from its use. A few days ago a double header train was stuck on the curve at Harmer street on account of the leaky condition of the boilers of the engines and switch engines from the yards were dispatched to the scene to bring the train in. The spectacle of an ordinary freight train hauled by four engines passing through the city attracted considerable attention. The rains and the snow of the past three or four weeks have not in the least relieved the water situation on the Nickel Plate.

TO HAVE SOCIAL SESSION.

Electrotechnics to Hold Annual Good Time Tomorrow.

The entertainment committee has taken complete charge of the meeting to be held by the Electrotechnic club tomorrow evening and the other members of the club anticipate a jolly time, though they are in ignorance concerning the program. The only information given out by the committee was that each of the members should come to the meeting tomorrow evening with a friend and the committee would do the rest. A bulletin on the boards at the Electric works announces the annual social meeting of the club tomorrow evening and it requests the attendance of all members, promising them a good time. There is to be no lecture.

MACHINIST INJURED.

A peculiar accident which threatens to disable the victim several days happened to C. H. Skillman, of the Pennsylvania erecting shop, Friday. He was removing the equalizes from a locomotive at the round house, when a spring which he released flew out and struck him a terrific blow on the chest. As a result of the injury Mr. Skillman has been unable to lie down since and what rest he takes is secured in an upright position. He is off duty, though able to walk around.

AIR BRAKE DEMONSTRATION.

C. R. Colmey, H. M. Diehl and F. E. More, of the Pennsylvania, will go to Wilmerding, Pa., next Wednesday to witness some experiments and demonstrations with air brakes. Wilmerding is on the Pennsylvania railroad and the demonstrations will attract quite a number of road foremen of engines, air brake experts and motive power inspectors from the various divisions on the parent line, as well as all of the lines west of Pittsburg.

SUPPLY MEN HAVE MEETING.

There will be a meeting of Wabash division store keepers and other supply men at St. Louis tomorrow, to compare notes and discuss the needs of the several divisions for the coming year. I. H. Shorey will represent this division, H. W. Hurst the Buffalo division, J. M. Hinman the Decatur division, G. W. Busch the Moberly division and C. E. Wright the Springfield division.

WRECKED ENGINE BROUGHT IN.

Wabash engine 816, which figured in the head-on collision at Rich Valley, a week or ten days ago, arrived in the city and was taken into the shops for repairs this morning. It will soon be repaired and turned over to service. The other engine was brought here a week ago.

REDUCED WORKING HOURS.

Beginning today the machinists at the Kerr Murray works will work forty-five hours per week, instead of fifty-five hours. The order does not affect the boilermakers, who are very busy.

PRESIDENT M'CREA GOES EAST.

President James McCrea, of the Pennsylvania, who had been in Chicago two or three days, passed through the city in his private car attached to train No. 18 this morning. He is en route to his home in Philadelphia.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

The Pennsylvania pay car will arrive in the city tomorrow.

Machinist Philip France, who had been sick, resumed work at the Pennsylvania shops this morning.

After an absence of three weeks on account of sickness, G. J. Tegeder resumed his duties at the Pennsylvania erecting shop this morning.

Mr. Otis, of Huntington, is here today inspecting a number of car wheels at the Bass foundry for the Erie company.

C. H. Doehrman, who had a hand hurt two or three weeks ago, was able to resume his duties at the Pennsylvania round house this morning.

Chief Clerk H. A. Philley, of the Pennsylvania road foreman's office, is suffering from an ulcerated tooth and was unable to report for duty this morning.

Engineer and Mrs. W. C. Kelker, of 347 Baker street, are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bowles, of Grand Rapids. Mr. Bowles is a retired G. R. & I. engineer.

Master Mechanic B. Fitzpatrick and Boiler Foreman B. F. Sarver went to Bloomington, Ill., this morning on business for the Pennsylvania company.

Miss Margaret Colchin resumed her position at the Wayne Knitting mills this morning, after an illness dating from early in November, when she passed through a surgical operation at St. Joseph's hospital.

The building at 229 East Columbia street is being equipped for the manufacture of "Hippo," a washing powder which is being placed on the market by James W. and T. W. Roach. C. A. Twombly, of Boston, will have charge of the plant.

H. Zimmerman, a clerk in the Pennsylvania store house at Chicago, was in the city today. He works for his brother, Paul Zimmerman, division storekeeper at Chicago, who was formerly a resident of Fort Wayne.

The Bowser bowling team defeated the Rolling Mills team Saturday night, putting the former in a fair way to taking the championship of the city. On January 30 the Bowsers and the Electricians will play a game.

C. Starke, F. H. Carpe and A. H. Diem, Pennsylvania shopmen, are sick and off duty today. J. P. Schmit, J. D. Ueber, A. P. Mueller, C. A. Forest, A. C. Hoffman and B. H. Katt, who had been sick, resumed their duties in the blacksmith shop this morning.

Foreman James A. Foster was unable to resume charge of affairs at the air brake room of the Pennsylvania shops this morning, as expected, but will probably do so tomorrow. In the mean time John Stephens will preside over the department. Mr. Foster has been sick with the grip for over a week.

The funeral of Levi A. L. Bixler, the Pennsylvania passenger car builder who was killed in the railway yards Thursday morning, took place from the family residence, 1423 Wall street, yesterday afternoon and was attended by a number of the shopmates of the deceased. Rev. B. B. Kane, of the Mennonite church, officiated, and interment was at Lindenwood.

C. A. How, purchasing agent; E. F. Needham, motive power superintendent and G. W. Smith, master mechanic, of the Wabash, will go to St. Thomas on the Buffalo division tonight on business for the company. Mr. Smith will join the others here and go to St. Thomas on the Continental limited.

Bellevue Gazette: "The local yard engines of the Nickel Plate have joined the 'Red Cross' service and are kept busy running to Colby and assisting 'dead ones' into the terminal in this city. The poor water at many points along the line is causing no small amount of trouble and engines are 'dying' at all points. Three trips were made to Colby by the yard engine before 9 o'clock this morning."

IN THE CHURCHES

all attending the Sunday school room of the church was opened. Rev. Rowand's sermon at the morning service was addressed especially to the church. His topic was "The I Am and I Can of Self." Primarily he showed that God is the infinite I Am, and that man is the only being he has created that can say I am and I can. He pointed out that when Moses asked God whom should he say to the Israelites had sent him, God told him to say that "I am that I am hath sent thee," and that therefore God asserted his personality. In referring to God as the Infinite I am, man was proven to be the finite I am, and that when man was in sin, the finite was divorced from the infinite, hence the mission of Christ to save the sinner.

The words of the Savior, "If any man come after me, let him take up his cross and follow me," intimates that man has not been following him. Man cannot possess oneness with Christ, cannot live in peace and in harmony unless he follows Christ. The rebellious, prodigal or opposing I am in man leads him from God. St. Paul found his perfected person in God and said "By the grace of God I am what I am." "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me." Therefore the man that believes that he is sufficient in his own strength is not a completed personality, he can never fulfill the measure of his own usefulness, for the grace of God is the great essential.

At the evening service the pastor preached the fifth sermon of the series he is giving on the "Acts of the Apostles." It was based on Peter's words to the assembled multitude on Solomon's porch, "Repent and turn again that your sins may be blotted out." The Lakeside quartet assisted at the service and rendered two excellent selections. After the service about one hundred remained for the inquirers' meeting. There were many inquiries into the way of life and the meeting was altogether helpful and consoling. This evening Rev. Rowand will speak on "The One Saving Name."

H. R. Freeman Wants Celebration of Lincoln Centennary.

Cashier H. R. Freeman, of the First National bank, is anxious that the centennary of Lincoln's birth on February 12 shall be properly observed in Fort Wayne, and in addition to the celebration by the G. A. R. posts at Library hall, Mr. Freeman would like to see appropriate exercises in all the schools of the city.

He calls attention to the fact that prominent clubs in Chicago are behind a movement to have a speaker in every school in that city on Lincoln's birthday, and suggests that Fort Wayne might well follow this example.

CITY TAKES ON ITS FIRST POWER CUSTOMER

Foster Factory is Driven by Municipal Current — City Hall Notes.

The municipal electric plant took on its first power customers today when current was turned on to drive the machines in the Foster Waist factory, on East Columbia street. The wiring connections were made Saturday evening and there was no loss of time to the factory in making the change. The factory of the Paragon company is also being connected up with the city electric plant.

Mayor Hosey said today that the schedule of rates for powor had not been definitely adopted, but that the rate would vary from 2½ cents to 6 cents per kilowatt, depending upon the conditions under which the current is to be used. The lower rate has been made to the waterworks department for the No. 3 pumping station on South Broadway, and the mayor estimated that the revenue to the lighting plant from the waterworks department would range from $5,000 to $8,000 per year.

Would Not Buy Complete Plant.

Chairman E. J. Lennon, of the board of public works, who returned yesterday from a trip to Indianapolis, says his investigations have led him to oppose the purchase of a complete asphalt plant for the city at this time. Mr. Lennon believes, however, that the city should acquire a plant sufficiently large to enable it to do patching on the asphalt streets, and that with the use of boilers and other material now on hand, this can be done at a cost of but a few hundred dollars. Later Mr. Lennon believes the city should equip itself with an outfit that will enable it to undertake complete jobs of resurfacing streets.

Notes at City Hall.

The city health department has report of a new case of diphtheria. The patient is Mrs. S. Young, 1426 Winter street.

The council committee of the whole will meet Tuesday evening upon call issued by Councilman Johnson to take up Councilman Cook's ordinance for the annexation of territory east of Glasgow avenue and north of the Pennsylvania and Findlay railroad tracks.

Furs and the Mercury

When old winter got down to business yesterday he sent a good many fingers tingling! Women who had been thinking they would do without furs this season, found their minds changed in a trice by the wind's argument. We would like to remind them that all our Furs—every piece in stock, is reduced, radically in price. Any of these would be a good investment.

PRESIDENT VETOES WATER POWER MEASURE

He Sees Danger of Great Trust in Electricity.

Washington, Jan. 18.—President Roosevelt in a message to congress has just warned the people of the United States that they are threatened by a monopoly far more powerful, because in far closer touch with their domestic and industrial life, than anything known previously.

This threatened monopoly is control of the water power of the country. The president says that thirteen companies, principally the General Electric and Westinghouse companies, control power sites with an aggregate of 1,046,000 horsepower, or over 19 per cent of the total now in use.

"'A single generation,' says the president, "will see the exhaustion of our natural resources of oil and gas and such a rise in the price of coal as will make the price of electrically transmitted water power a controlling factor in transportation, in manufacturing and in household lighting and heating.

"Our water power alone, if fully developed and wisely used, is probably sufficient for our present transportation, industrial, municipal and domestic needs. Most of it is undeveloped, and is still in national or state control."

President Roosevelt was moved to these thoughts by a bill which passed the house of representatives granting authority to William H. Standish to construct a dam across James river, in Stone county, Missouri, and divert a portion of its waters through a tunnel into the said river again to create electric power. He refused to sign the bill, and gave his reasons therefor.

The president says that in reality the thirteen corporations, probably, control 33 per cent of the present developed water power.

Occurs Within Five Years.

"This astonishing consolidation," says Mr. Roosevelt, "has taken place practically within the last five years. The movement is still in its infancy, and unless it is controlled the history of the oil industry will be repeated in the hydro-electric power industry, with results far more oppressive and disastrous for the people.

"It is true that the great bulk of our potential water power is yet undeveloped, but the sites which are now controlled by combinations are those which offer the greatest advantages and therefore hold a strategic position. This is certain to be strengthened by the increasing demand for power and the extension of long distance electrical transmission.

"It is, in my opinion, relatively unimportant for us to know whether or not the promoters of this particular project are affiliated with any of these geat corporations. If we make an unconditional grant to this grantee our control over it ceases. He or any purchaster from him will be free to sell his rights to any one of them at pleasure. The time to attach conditions and prevent monopoly is when a grant is made.

"The great corporations are acting with foresight, singleness of purpose, and vigor to control the water powers of the country. They pay no attention to state boundaries and are not interested in the constitutional law affecting navigable streams except as it affords what has been aptly called a 'twilight zone,' where they may find a convenient refuge from any regulation whatever by the public, whether through the national or the state governments.

"It is significant that they are opposing the control of water power on the Desplaines river by the state of Illinois with equal vigor and with like arguments to those with which they oppose the national government pursuing the policy I advocate.

"No grant of this kind should be made except as it provides for a fee to secure title to the people and for termination of the grant or privilege at a definite time. I will sign no bill granting a privilege of this character which does not contain the substance of these conditions. I consider myself bound, as far as exercise of my executive power will allow, to do for the people, in prevention of monopoly of their resources, what I believe they would do for themselves if they were in a position to act."

Cured of a Severe Attack of Bronchitis by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"On October 18th, last, my little three year old daughter contracted a severe cold which resulted in a bad case of bronchitis," says Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Lexington, Ky. "She lost the power of speech completely and was a very sick child. Fortunately we had a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and gave it to her according to the printed directions. On the second day she was a great deal better, and on the fifth day, October 23rd, she was entirely well of her cold and bronchitis, which I attribute to this splendid medicine. I recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy unreservedly as I have found it the surest, safest and quickest cure for colds, both for children and adults, of any I have ever used." For sale by all druggists.

To reduce the reading of a Centigrade scale thermometer to Fahrenheit, subtract 10 degrees from the given temperature, from this remainder subtract one-tenth of itself, double the result and add 50 degrees to the answer. To reduce a Fahrenheit reading to Centigrade, subtract 50 degrees from the given temperature, divide the remainder by two, multiply this quotient by ten, divide the product by nine, and add 10 degrees to the last quotient.

S.S.S. RIDS THE SYSTEM OF CATARRH

Catarrh is a blood disease which causes a general inflammation of the inner linings or mucous membranes of the body. The diseasing of these delicate surfaces and tissues produces all the well known symptoms of the trouble, such as ringing noises in the head and ears, tight, stuffy feeling in the nose, pains above the eyes, irritation of the throat, sometimes slight fever, and a general feeling of weakness and ill health. Even the lungs become affected by the continual passage of impure blood through them, and there is danger of consumption if the disease is allowed to remain in the system. S. S. S. cures Catarrh because it purifies the blood. It goes into the circulation and removes every particle of the catarrhal matter, making this vital fluid pure, rich and healthy. Then the inflamed membranes begin to heal, every symptom disappears, the constitution is built up and health restored. S. S. S. rids the system of catarrh by attacking the trouble at its head and entirely removing the cause from the blood, thus making a permanent and lasting cure. S. S. S. is made entirely from health-giving roots, herbs and barks, and for this reason is an especially safe and desirable medicine. Book on Catarrh and any medical advice free to all who write.

Our Disappointment

We have been disappointed by the artisans employed in making the improvements at our old place of business on Berry street and consequently will have to announce that our removal has been postponed until

On or Before February 1st

By that time everything will be in readiness to receive our new and complete line which will be sold along the same lines as we have always done business.

It is Hard to Express Our Disappointment

But we will have to be philosophical about it and take things as we find them. We had thought to have been in our new store by this time; we find it cannot be.

In the Meantime We shall Continue Our Sale

We feel that our customers and prospective customers should have the benefit of this delay in MOVING TO OUR OLD HOME and we shall continue to give them the benefit of our

Twenty-five per cent. Reduction On All Goods

besides greater reductions which we shall take pleasure in stating if you will call upon us at our present location in the old Journal-Gazette building on East Main street.

SOME evenin's I reach for my hat,
And down the steps I rush a-stumblin',
Like I was blind as any bat,
And growlin' all the way and grumblin'
Till you would laugh at me or you
Would sympathize some with me maybe.
But anyhow that's how I do
When my wife starts to spank the baby.

I know if I butt in at all
My wife will not be apt to thank me,
And still I hear my baby call
To me, "Please, dad, don't let her 'pank me!'"
And I just have to rush outside
And down the street a-gallivantin',
And in my ears at every stride
My baby's pleadin' voice comes ha'nt-in'.

And sometimes I halfway turn back
At the remembrance of her pleadin',
Halfway worked up to fly the track,
Although I know the baby's needin'
A tender dingbat now and then,
When her wee feet go widely straying,
When she has run away or when
She's mussed her clean dress up a-playin'.

But that don't make it easy none
For me when mother spanks the baby,
And I just grab my hat and run
And don't come back again till maybe
The babies are all tucked in bed,
All snuggled in and soundly sleepin',
With all their lay-mes softly said
And with an end to all their weepin'.

That baby is the cutest slip
And says the quaintest things, dog-gone it!
Sometimes when mamma says, "I'll whip!"
She says: "You tan't. I'm settin' on it!"
Now, after a reply like that
Who could watch baby get the paddle?
No wonder I reach for my hat
And don't look back as I skedaddle.

I like to think I'd hear the call
And go to war 'long with the quickest
And stand firm where the bullets fall
And where the slayin' blows fall thickest.
Maybe I would stand up and fight,
And I'd die facin' the foe maybe.
I think the bravest men take flight
When it gets time to spank the baby.

She Had Often Studied It.

Little Marie had returned from her first visit to Sunday school.

"And what lesson are you to study for next Sunday?" her mother asked.

"Nuffin' much," said the four-year-old rather scornfully. "Her jest said to learn all about the catakissin', and me knowed that already."—Lippincott's Magazine.

An Advantage.

"But your country is so lacking in places of historic interest," said the European.

"That's one of its great advantages," answered Mr. Cumrox. "In this country a man can travel for hours without being obliged to listen to a lecture."—Washington Star.

Warm Times.

Gunner—Going downtown this morning the floor of the car caught afire. I never laughed so much in my life.

Guyer—What was laughable?

Gunner—Why, it was the first time the conductor didn't have to tell the passengers to "step lively."—Chicago News.

She Holds the Center.

"Yes, she demanded a play in which she could hold the center of the stage."

"And she holds it?"

"For three hours. Why, they even bring on a screen and put it around her when she wants to make a change of costume."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Question of Relative Merit.

A little boy of eight years, attending school away from home, wrote a letter to his sister, from which the following extract is taken:

"We had a spelling match in school today, and I spelled all the boys down and won the meddle."—Delineator.

Just So.

Colonel White—Your son is quite a singer, isn't he, Busenbark?

Brother Busenbark—Yassah! Yassah! 'Bleeged to yo' for axin'. Dat boy, sah, am suttin'ly de most malodorous cullud passen in dis whole town.—Puck.

Disappointed.

"Look here," said Mr. Chuggins, "that motor car doesn't make anything like the speed you guaranteed."

"How do you know?"

"I've been running it a week and haven't been arrested."—Houston Post.

Recent Fiction.

"Have you read any of the recent fiction?" "I have read it all." "Where?" "In Dumas, forty years ago."—Boston Traveler.

GRILLS THE VIVISECTIONISTS.

Advocates of Regulating Animal Experiments Ask Operators Some Pertinent Questions.

Protesting against attempts to misrepresent the attitude of the Society For the Prevention of Abuse In Animal Experimentation, Mr. F. P. Bellamy, counsel for the society, denies that it ever proposed the prohibition of vivisection. The society stands, he says, upon precisely the platform where Herbert Spencer, the greatest of English scientists, stood when in 1895 he, with nearly 200 of the most prominent physicians in England and in this country, signed a statement in which he said:

"We believe, therefore, that the common interests of humanity and science demand that vivisection, like the study of human anatomy in the dissecting room, should be brought under the direct supervision and control of the state. The practice, whether in public or in private, should be restricted by law to certain definite objects and surrounded by every possible safeguard against license or abuse."

Mr. Bellamy insists that these questions call for a frank answer from those who oppose any such safeguards:

Queries For the Doctors.

How can legitimate scientific work by competent men be injured by a law which will limit all vivisection to competent persons?

How can legitimate scientific work be injured by a law which will compel the use of anaesthetics in all cases where the success of the experiment does not make the use of anaesthetics impracticable?

If our proposed legislation does not fully protect legitimate scientific work, why do not our opponents who criticise it accept our often repeated invitation and suggest some amendment which will fully protect scientific research?

Why the secrecy with which vivisection is surrounded? Has the disemboweling of living animals, in order to experiment with their vital organs, or the amputation of limbs from one animal and attaching them to another become so painless that the public has no interest to know what effort is made to save unnecessary suffering?

Or is the brutality of the whole thing so hideous or so unnecessary that the operators do not dare to let in the light of investigation upon it?

We again challenge them to open the doors of their star chamber laboratories and let the truth be known. In no other way can they quiet the public apprehension or avert the legislation of which they have such dread.

PIONEER AMERICAN LINEN MILLS BRANCHING OUT.

Huge Plant Now Planned Made Necessary by One Year's Development of New Industry.

Impressive evidence of the progress of the pioneer American Linen mills established at North Brookfield, Mass., about a year ago is found in the plans just completed for extending the plant. Beginning with limited capacity in a mill that had to be adapted by degrees to the requirements of the Oxford Linen mills, the business has grown to such an extent that plans have been drawn for half a dozen new buildings, all larger than the present main mill.

The plans call for an addition double the size of the present main mill, a new stock, storage and shipping building, weave shed, "oxolint" factory, bleach house and fiber preparing house. The two latter buildings will be in the center of a quadrangle formed by the other buildings mentioned.

All the buildings will be of re-enforced concrete. The new weave shed is to be a two story building, provided with overhead lighting by means of a saw tooth roof containing 375 skylights. The power plant will be located well away from the mill building proper, all the machinery in which will be electrically operated. A stock issue of about $165,000 made in connection with the beginning of these extensions was all taken within a week, largely by original shareholders in the mills.

The Oxford mill was the first establishment in the United States to undertake the manufacture of linen products from fiber prepared by the Mudge process. This accomplishes in a few hours the work that abroad requires many weeks. Judging from the extensions to be carried out by the Oxford mills, there seems to be no further reason to question the immense success of the undertaking.

Turbine Fans For American Dreadnoughts.

For the forced draft equipment of the United States battleships Delaware and North Dakota twenty-eight turbine fans, each with a capacity of 24,000 cubic feet a minute, have been built at the Troy works of the Sirocco Engineering company.

Although only twenty-seven inches in diameter, the fourteen Sirocco turbine fans to be installed on each of the United States Dreadnoughts supply 336,000 cubic feet of air every minute to keep the fires roaring under the boilers of these monster war vessels. It is an enormous output for their small size that has led to the adoption of this type of fan on all the principal transatlantic liners, in European navies and now by the United States naval authorities. The fans are built on the same principle as a steam turbine and consist of a "squirrel cage" drum surrounded by sixty or more narrow blades.

THE MARKETS

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 18.—Despite the bearish character of weekly statistics, the wheat market here today was firm, owing to moderate support by bull leaders. The demand was based chiefly on liberal decreases in stocks of wheat at important grain centers in this country and on the improvement in demand for the cash grain. World's shipments were fairly liberal, being 7,904,000 bushels for the week, compared with 6,992,000 bushels the previous week and the amount on passage increased 1,100,000 bushels. Prices at the start were ⅛@¼c to ¼@⅜c higher, May opening at $1.06⅜ to $1.06½. After touching $1.06¼, May advanced to $1.06⅝. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 363 cars.

The wheat market held firm all day, the high point for May being reached at $1.06⅝. The close was firm with May up ¼@⅜c at $1.06½.

An official forecast of the unsettled weather for the corn belt caused moderate strength in the corn market. The fact that the local receipts were less than had been estimated also had a bullish effect. May opened a shade to ⅛c higher at 61c to 61@61⅛c and sold at 61¼c. Receipts were 351 cars.

The corn market was steady the remainder of the day, with prices a trifle above yesterday's final quotations. The close was firm with May ⅛@¼c higher at 61⅛c.

Although trade in the oats market was quiet a firm tone prevailed, owing to the strength of wheat. May opened a shade lower at 51⅛c and advanced to 51½c.

Provisions were strong on buying credited to lacol packers. Prices at the start were 5c to 10c higher.

LOCAL MARKET EPITOME.

Indications this morning gave rise to the belief that potatoes would be a big factor in the Barr street produce markets this week, with heavy demands for chickens and butter, and with the egg market also firmer. Potatoes will probably advance from 2c to 4c per bushel on home-grown stock and the same amount on Michigan stock.

The receipts on the Barr street market today were very light, while the usual demands prevailed.

Said G. H. Crouse, of the commission house of G. H. Crouse & Co., this morning: "With fair weather we will have a medium-sized market tomorrow, while the bigger markets will begin to show by Wednesday. Receipts will be in chickens, eggs, butter and possibly some apples and potatoes and the demands will be good, resulting in the holders asking about the same prices."

POSTAL CLERK IN TROUBLE.

Old Employe at Salt Lake City Arrested for Stealing.

Salt Lake City, Utah, Jan. 18.—In the arrest of Charles C. Slade, superintendent of delivery of the local postoffice, charged with extracting money from letters, Salt Lake business and social circles are experiencing one of the most pronounced sensations of recent years.

Mr. Slade has been employed in the mail department for twenty-five years, fifteen of which was as head of the city delivery department. His family is prominent socially, entertained in lavish fashion and his wife's gowns have been the envy of many women in the circle in which she moved.

It is not possible to estimate the amount of money secured in this manner, but it is believed that the total is small. Sums ranging from twenty-five cents to $25 have been missed at various times extending over a period of about one year.

Mrs. Slade assigns ill-health, overwork and financial worry as the cause of her husband's alleged action.

To show the humanity of the Danish authorities a Berlin paper publishes a picture which was taken in a Danish prison on Christmas eve. It shows the convicts seated at a table decorated with a miniature Christmas tree. Among those at the board are a number of men in ordinary citizen's clothes, who seem to enjoy the repast with their uniformed guests. A large Danish flag hides from view the bars, behind which the group is seated.

When one of his old friends was visiting Mark Twain at his Redding home a short time ago he remarked on the picturesque appearance of a windmill in the distant landscape. It was not a windmill, however, but the tower of the Congregational church at Redding Center. When the clergyman of that church came to see Mr. Clemens the latter told him that one of his guests had called his church a windmill, adding, "I think that was going a little too far."

WORKED IN FORT WAYNE.

Senator Cummins, of Iowa, Once a Surveyor Here.

Hon. Albert B. Cummins, former governor of Iowa and just elected to the United States senate from that state, was for a time many years ago a deputy surveyor in Fort Wayne, and assisted in the engineering work on the Cincinnati, Richmond and Fort Wayne railroad—now the southern division of the Grand Rapids and Indiana line. Senator Cummins declares he knew nothing of surveying when he took up the work, but put on a bold front and managed to complete it in satisfactory fashion.

A SPRAINED ANKLE.

As a rule a man will feel well satisfied if he can hobble around on crutches in two or three weeks after spraining his ankle, and it is often two or three months before he is fully recovered. This is an unnecessary loss of time, as by applying Chamberlain's Liniment, as directed, a cure may as a rule be effected in less than one week's time, and in many cases within three days. BEST COAL PRICES RIGHT — CITY WEIGHT PROMPT SERVICE

DON'T BE DECEIVED

The City Fuel Co.

Gives coal to the poor every day, and don't wish to publish it or ask you to boost for them on that account, and make it a personal gain.

To give to the poor they deem a personal privilege. They believe that the noblest charity is to help a man to help himself—and they do this when you buy from them, for they give you what is coming to you in QUALITY and QUANTITY, and at a fair price that is no higher than elsewhere.

Their prices being no higher than elsewhere does not signify a combine. But they do say that you can get cleaner fuel from them than you can get elsewhere. They handle the best grades of Hocking Valley, West Virginia, Jackson, Massilon, Cannell, Kentucky and Indiana Coal; also Wash Nut, Charcoal, Coke, Wood and Kindling. This coal is all under shed, and you don't get a frozen lump of slack for lump coal. Their hard coal is the celebrated Scranton which they handle through elevated coal bins and it must be clean, for it cannot reach their wagons without passing over screens. Their delivery is made with one-horse wagons. This is the latest custom in all large cities and gives perfect assurance against mistakes over the old way of hauling your order and four or five others on the same load with chances that you get coal which you did not buy.

Their double system of weighing can't be beat. First by a competent, bonded weighmaster at their yards, then over the city scales.

Then they have an inspector whose duty it is to see that drivers don't sell a part of your load before reaching you and that the delivery is with care and no overcharges are made for carrying.

The Lakeside, Main Street and Spy Run cars reach their yard on the corner of Lafayette St. and Nickel Plate Railroad, and they invite the public to inspect their coal before buying.

Try a ton of their celebrated Scranton Hard Coal, egg stove or nut size, $7.50 per ton. The number two nut for small baseburner or kitchen stoves, $6.50, or their half and half, $7.00.

THE EXPERIENCES OF A LITERARY HACK

A Young Woman Who Has Tried the Alluring Literary Game of New York Writes of Its Tribulations and Its Scanty Laurels.

"WEEPING OVER THE DEATH OF THE MISSIONARY HEN."

NEW YORK, Saturday.

I WAS scarcely in my teens when my compositions for the dreaded Friday afternoon exercises began to be especially commended by my teachers, and, as a general rule, to be marked 100%. While I do not now bear them any malice for this marking, the light of my subsequent career justifies me in saying that the attempt of many years of writing to keep up to that full standard of supposed perfection has taught me that I never deserved it. The ambition to attain it has on several occasions brought me almost within the shadow of success—almost.

But my facility with my pen saved me from disgrace in other ways, for I was wretched in mathematics and would have failed in examination time without number had I not quietly written sundry papers in composition, grammar, rhetoric and English literature in exchange for algebra and geometry.

Before I left high school a local paper had published several of my essays and a county magazine, devoted to rural interests, had printed three or four sets of verses.

My father was superintendent of the Sunday school, and I was permitted to help him select proper books for the pupils. I specially recall a choice production entitled "Bernie's White Chicken," being the tale of a hen that laid an incredible number of eggs, which, when Bernie had sold and invested the proceeds in Bibles and catechisms, resulted in the salvation of an impossible number of heathen in Beloochistan, or some such place, and I remember weeping over the death of the missionary hen. Yet I was already fascinated by Darwin, Huxley, Volney and Voltaire.

Just before I was graduated I met a young man, and the attraction was mutual. He had a fine tenor voice and we sang together a good deal. No word of love ever passed between us, and I believe that we met on exactly the same plane—a thoroughly romantic and idealized attachment, in which a perfect harmony of thought and feeling made our acquaintance a paradise of exquisite pleasure whenever we met. His firm sent him to a distant city, and I have never seen him since. Almost immediately after this I went West to visit some cousins and had several more or less ardent suitors among the tall and brawny farmers—one big and handsome enough for one of Ouida's heroes. Needless to say, he was my choice, but he was already engaged to the Other Girl, and the way she camped on our trail was something awful.

A young medical student was persistently attentive, followed me home later and asked me to marry him. Without being in the least in love with him I foolishly consented. We were engaged for about six months; then, when I realized that he actually expected me to marry him in June, I became frightened and wrote breaking the engagement. He married another girl six months later, went further West, is the father of a family and a prosperous physician.

My father was a poor man, and it was necessary for me to do something to help out the family finances. I went to the editor of a morning newspaper, in the city and asked to be paid for a few verses and short prose contributions that had been accepted. He called me "my dear child" and told me I ought to get married. I went over to the rival paper, and as they were looking for a society editor I had an assignment almost immediately, a reception to a distinguished man at the palatial home of a millionnaire. A little after midnight I was back in the office writing my first copy. I was filled with a delightful excitement, and the dingy office looked as radiant to me as the gold and white ballroom I had just left.

After a brief trial "on space" I was placed on a salary of $25 per week, and remained with that paper three years. I had been at a boarding house but a few weeks when the manager of one of the leading hotels offered me a room and board at $50 per month. I accepted. Then I met a fashionable dressmaker who wanted more custom. I was able to send her two of the season's débutantes, and, in return had the present of a pink ball gown. My star went straight up into the zenith and stayed there. I loved my work and was thoroughly happy for the first time in my life.

It was not long before I was doing more than the society writing; I got up a variety of copy on local subjects, wrote book reviews, features for the Sunday edition, did summer resort gossip, reported State conventions, interviewed all visiting celebrities, wrote up lectures and concerts, reported the World's Fair at Chicago, was sent to the penitentiary to interview some distinguished citizens, and on several occasions was permitted to write a short editorial.

My trip to the penitentiary to visit the disgraced banker was of strange and painful interest, as I had known him and his wife before his downfall, and frequently met them at social functions. The moment he saw me he burst into tears and inquired after his little boy. I had a long talk with him, got his story and wrote on the train all the way back. As I sat down in my hotel to finish the story the awful meaning of it all flashed over me and I collapsed in hysterical weeping. For many days I saw in my mind's eye the line of dreary striped figures and the pale, convulsed face of the banker. Fortunately I had few such painful assignments.

At this time I was writing short fiction stories for an evening paper, for which they paid $5 apiece, and I also had several sets of verses accepted by New York magazines, receiving $5 and $10 for them. I wrote up the golden anniversary of one of our business houses, for which they paid my paper $300 and me $25 for my work, and after that more work in that line came my way from time to time. The last year I was with my paper I must have made nearly $1,500, for fifty-two weeks at $25 a week is $1,300, and I had a good deal of outside work.

As I have been asked hundreds of times why I came to New York I want to say that the idea did not originate with me, but was instilled into my mind by well meaning friends, who said:—"Why on earth don't you go to New York?" The suggestion was enough. My ambition fed on it, my imagination built upon it, and I came. But I wish to call attention to the fact that here was a deliberate cleavage accomplished without my active desire.

Apparently no venture could have been more favorable, for my paper agreed to take a year's weekly letters, for which I got $60 per month, and with twenty-two letters of introduction and eleven million suggestions as to where to live and what to do, I arrived here, not knowing a human being save the newspaper man from home who met me. I forgot to say that just before I left a man whom I knew and liked very well—a widower—asked me to marry him. I had known all along that he was going to do it, but I managed to smooth it over for him, and he married another woman. We have always remained friends. He is financially prosperous and would have given me a good home.

I had already acquired the hotel habit, so I took a room at a good hotel at a rate of $5 a week, on the European plan, and I remained there for a year. That first year, although it is true that I did a good deal of work, it is also true that I had such a good time with my dinner and theatre invitations and the general sightseeing process that I did not feel impelled to work with my usual unremitting industry. No staff openings were available, but as it was the fruitful era of the woman's page and as I began to sell short fiction stories to the syndicates I got along very well. I have not at hand a single figure to quote correctly as to my income, but I remember that from time to time I saw that I was making about fifty per cent more than I had formerly made, yet many times that faithful little $60 check was all there was in sight. I know now that I didn't realize how much that check meant to me. The spectre of uncertainty did not yet stalk by my side and haunt my dreams.

At the end of a year my letters to the home paper ended. My newspaper friend, now holding a responsible position, had sent for his sister, a splendid cook and housekeeper, and we went up in the eighties and took an apartment. The plan worked to a charm for three years. My share was $12 a week. We lived well and got along without a sign of friction. Now there dawned three very busy years. I worked industriously and began to cover the field in a general way, wrote verses, short stories and several two and three part stories and serials, had a number of assignments for Sunday issues, did some club and department work, got interviews, became somewhat familiar with the east side, wrote a number of little prose sketches and for about a year contributed with more or less regularity to the "funny page" of an evening paper.

I would give a good deal to know exactly what I earned. I can only set down approximately what I remember. For a lot of newspaper stuff I got the regular space rates, from $8 to $10 a column, and for "specials," Sunday or otherwise, $50 or $75 a story. The evening paper paid me well for my nonsense stuff, and asked for more than I could possibly write. I got a general rate of about $15 a column, but time and again I was pleasantly surprised at the cashier's window by more than I had expected. Syndicates and magazines paid me a rate of about a cent a word for short fiction stories, so I got from $10 to $25 or $30 for those, but if I could please an editor with a special story written "to order" or "on approval" I got more, and so I developed some aptitude for Christmas, New Year's, Easter, Thanksgiving and Fourth of July stories, and I don't mind saying that it was as hard work as I ever did.

And now, as I am even more willing to tell of my mistakes than of my success, I wish to point out here that in this apparent success lay unsuspected all the germs of future discontent and of limitations that later, seemed to spring hydra-headed from every source. It was the uncertainty of the income that began to get in its evil work. Sometimes I earned from $75 to $100 in a week, again only $50, again only $25, sometimes nothing at all. Immediately connected with this came my first experience in having my work refused, and disappointment, chagrin, the intense resentment of mortified ambition and the bitterness of humiliated pride all combined to set up a new mental attitude within me.

I kept my own counsel pretty closely, laughed most of it down, and lied about the rest to my friends and associates, so that they suspected nothing. The conditions peculiar to free lancing are especially conducive to lying and living a life of deceit. For instance, three or four magazines of any given month might contain some of my work. This looked very prosperous, yet, as all of it had been paid for on acceptance, I might be penniless, or very nearly so, when my stories appeared. Then invariably I ran across no end of people who would say:—"My, but you're coming along fast! Getting rich, aren't you? Oh, how you must enjoy being a clever, independent woman!"

This was the beginning of "bluffing." It was easy at first. Also, I began to do fool things with my money. One cannot have friends and go around without doing something in return, and to do something, even a little, costs in New York. A little luncheon or a little dinner at a swell restaurant or hotel requires real money, and the occasional cab and the sometimes play, the thousand and one ways in which one may spend money here, took many a week's income. Then a lively hustle to catch up and settle bills, increasing irritation with the uncertainty of conditions, the disgust at getting a decent check in the morning and not having a dollar of it twenty-four hours later, with apparently nothing to show for it, contributed to make life very different from what it had been.

I discovered certain limitations in my work, too. For example, I never could write a child story and get it accepted, yet I love children dearly and they always swarm about me. Another thing I have never done acceptably is a certain gossipy line of stuff for women's columns. I don't read it, and of course I can't write it. Seeing its cleverness and popularity, I, at one time, swore to myself that I would do it. I studied the style of every woman writer in New York, studied various papers and made a noble plunge. The editor of an evening paper gave me a chance. I was a rank, unmitigated failure. Gabriel will blow his trump long before I ever try that again.

About this time, and for several years afterward, I would have married the right man if he had come along and asked me. He didn't. I had for years a charming man chum, and we established a lifelong friendship, which has not been interrupted by his marriage nor by the fact that he now lives in another city. Our tastes were absolutely congenial. I don't know how many times we dined together, how many times we talked about everything in heaven and on earth. He recited miles of poetry to me in his deep, melodious voice and gave me good practical advice about a lot of things. We were, and are, absolute comrades, and our friendship is one of the few perfect things of my life. No one has ever taken his place.

My newspaper friend and his sister had never liked New York, and when he received a flattering offer to take charge of a paper in the West they promptly removed. I had a little money, and I took a studio room and did my cooking with an alcohol lamp and a chafing dish. The rent of this room was $25 a month, but the way my expenses varied was a wonder. I worked more diligently than ever and by constant application succeeded in somewhat extending the field of my work and in getting higher rates.

In order to save space and clear up the rest of my experience, I might as well say here that the highest I have ever been paid for a short fiction story is $200; the most I have ever received for a newspaper story, $100; the highest I have ever been paid for a serial, $500, and my financial condition has ranged all the way from having the latter sum neatly tucked away to being stone broke and not knowing where my next dollar would come from. This statement covers my entire fourteen years in New York, but I don't wish to convey the impression that I earned those sums all the time, for I certainly didn't. From time to time I held department positions on different magazines, getting from $25 to $40 a week, and as I always continued my free lance work my income would run up nicely. Then a cog would slip somewhere. It may sound odd, but it is a fact that no fewer than three magazines suspended publication while I was on the staff, and a fourth was sold and removed to Chicago while I was a regular staff contributor. My last check from this particular magazine was for $80, and as I had thought I was at last fixed for life my heart was about broken. I hope I have made it clear that the element of uncertainty was a certainty.

One time I went to the editor of a syndicate for which I had done a good deal of work and said:—"You know what I can do. I'm sick and tired of free lancing. Put me on a desk."

He replied:—"You are more valuable to me on the outside. As soon as I give you a desk here you will stop bringing me in the stuff I want."

No matter how hard I worked my income always fluctuated, and the mental tension got on my nerves and began to have its effect on my work. It is impossible to write well in a depressed or nervous frame of mind. I had long intended to write a book, and I was able to make arrangements with a publisher for some advance royalties. He gave me a check for $100. I left New York and went to my home in the West and wrote the book. I took six months to it and fairly revelled in the consciousness of doing my best work. My publisher was pleased with the growth of the story and advanced me more money, in all between $300 and $400, and the book was published in 1902.

The reviews were most flattering. More than three hundred press clippings seemed to indicate that it would become one of the "best sellers." I frankly confess that I had hoped to make a modest fortune out of it, and when in the end I realized that I was out of the race for popular favor I grieved as a mother might grieve for a lost child and sobbed myself to sleep many nights. About this time a well meaning friend started a newspaper paragraph saying that I had made more than $5,000 from the book, and it went the rounds. The truth is the book brought me in altogether about $800.

Two years later, 1904, my second book was published. It also had a very favorable reception by the critics. My royalties were exactly $300. I had returned to New York after the publication of my first book and was at work in the old way again. I find a few figures in an old notebook showing that between October 17, 1905, and November 27 of the same year I received $246. During that same year I wrote three vaudeville sketches. Two were said by the agents to be "too refined" for vaudeville. The third I wrote under a verbal contract with an actress who had starred in melodrama. When it was finished she kept it for two days, returned it, saying it was all right, but she would go back to her old rôle and bade me an affectionate farewell. A couple of months later I discovered by accident that she had changed the title and had had three weeks' booking in New York! I looked her up. She had married and left the stage. I never got a cent for my work.

There is nothing especial to mention with reference to the last three years except that the panic of a year ago reached from the advertising department to the editorial department and thence to me, so that I was very nearly landed in the poorhouse. The editors were using up their old stock and story after story was returned to me. I have had as many as six or eight out at one time and had every one returned to me. For months I had small and infrequent returns. I think that from about the first of February to the first of September the largest check I had was $30—$10 and $15 were more familiar. It was the longest arid period I ever experienced, and rather than go through it again I would do any kind of common manual labor. One hundred dollars for a fiction story early in October started the machinery again, and $80 more up to date of this writing, November 6, has helped a little. Still I am in debt, and I have written this story because I need the money.

Do I regret not having married? No. In fact, I never cared less for marriage in my life than I do just now. Marriage would mean nothing to me or could do nothing for me, unless it would develop permanent progress, and to attract me it would have to include perfect unity of thought and perfect freedom of action. Comradeship is as dear a word to me as love, and I already have several life friendships, with both men and women, which have sprung out of my work, and they have mellowed the way all along, even as oases in the desert. Would my life have been easier or happier with a husband? With the right man, yes; with the wrong one, no. I have had no grief which I would willingly exchange for an unfaithful husband, a drunken son or a wayward daughter. One's sense of intellectual integrity demands that what has been begun must also be finished, and I would have no objection to finishing up with a first class salaried position for the rest of my natural life.

Do I advise ambitious young writers to choose writing as a career? With judicious safeguards, yes. But those safeguards must indeed be safe, and should be of such a nature that the strain of uncertainty be eliminated. Every human being, man and woman, should help to make the world better by an output of work which is the product of natural, untrammelled energy, but this output should be perfectly spontaneous, unhindered by lurking fears, illumined with courage and beautified by the exquisite consciousness of activity that knows no limitation. Congenial work is joy, and many of my happiest hours have been passed lost to the world in the full absorption of work. The advantages of a newspaper training for a woman are many—a wide and varied experience, habits of thought and expression, a very excellent training for the memory, association with practically all classes of people, which should logically lead to broad views on all subjects and a sympathetic interest with the heart of humanity. It is essentially opposed to all forms of snobbishness, quickens the perceptions and, if the woman is progressive, assimilates readily, educational and comprehensive.

Life and experience have done some good for me and I am ready for the larger activity, as I am yet to do my best work. It is a great mistake not to consider everything we do, even the smallest, as conscious, intelligent parts of a whole, for life is constructive, and to build intelligently for the future is the only wise thing. To do this we must work out our own individuality alone, and settle our account with God face to face, for He will surely require of us the talent He delivered into our keeping. How, then, shall we meet Him if we are not able to at least say, "I have done the best I could." Within the last two years I have found much peace in simple faith, and I know that only harmony with the Divine Will can produce real mental, moral or spiritual growth.

I consider freelancing as a sole means of livelihood most unsatisfactory, even if the financial returns should be ample, for the vagaries of income are not conducive to settled habits of expense. The precarious nature of the occupation is almost enough to damn a destiny, and discouragement is a deadly soul mate. I wish to add that I have always had certain family obligations, and it has been a privilege not to live to myself alone. Also, it is supposed that an unmarried woman living alone must necessarily be lonesome. I am not, and I have always been able to make my surroundings homelike and to welcome a few close friends. I have a little skill with my needle and have made my own lingerie, kimonos, shirt waists and summer dresses. I have trimmed my own hats, darned my stockings and done my laundry times without number. I am a good plain cook and an excellent housekeeper.

And, on the whole, I remind myself of a wise maxim:—"The only way to prevent what has happened is to put a stop to it before it begins."

Types of Thinkers.

WHEN we think we use mental images to assist the process, but these are not of the same kind with all persons. Charcot, the famous French alienist, divided men into three types, according as these images are of hearing, seeing or speaking. The man of the first type hears mentally the words of his thought, as if pronounced by another; those of the second type read these words as if written before them; those of the third type utter the words themselves, mentally. These types, however, are not rigorously separate. A man may belong to two, or to all three, and there are intermediate sorts. A more recent French psychologist, Dr. St. Paul, recognizes the following:—The "verbo-auditive," which hears words mentally but does not articulate them; the "auditive-motor-verbal," which both hears and articulates, either simultaneously or successively; the "verbo-motor," which must articulate mentally when thinking, but has no sound-image; the "verbo-visual-motor," which both pronounces and reads the words; the "verbo-visual," which merely sees them; the "auditive-visual-verbal," which both sees and hears the words, without articulation, and the "indifferent," which uses sometimes one method of thought and sometimes another. It is proposed to investigate many thousands of persons to ascertain the relative frequency of these types.

Scent in Dogs and Humans.

A FRENCH medical journal has been giving considerable space recently to the question:—Do Englishmen have a recognizable odor? Some Frenchmen, it appears, assert that this odor exists and that they can pick out English people by means of it, in a railway train, for instance.

That each person has an individual recognizable odor seems an established fact, and though our sense of smell is usually not acute enough to detect it, a dog does so readily and under conditions that would appear miraculous, if we were not so familiar with them.

Racial odors we can detect and often recognize, provided they are sufficiently different from our own.

Every race, however, believes that it is odorless, and the odor of an alien race therefore appears repulsive to it. We recognize at once that Chinese, Japanese, negroes and so on possess distinct racial odors, but we are surprised when we find that the Oriental detects in the white European or American a characteristic and repulsive smell. This is described by them as being "a flat, stale odor," "an odor of death," and so on; and some Japanese have said that it is all that they can do to control their feelings of disgust when in the room with Europeans. It is quite possible, therefore, that some Frenchmen may be able to detect and recognize a characteristic "English odor."

As for individual odors, although we do not recognize them consciously, it is probable that they have much to do with what we call "instinctive" feelings of attraction or repulsion. Mediaeval tales ascribe to the saints delightful odors of flowers and to wicked magicians odors of sulphur and the like. Some authorities assert that blond persons have a characteristic odor different from that of brunettes. The trouble about investigation of the subject is that the special sense on which we must depend is untrustworthy and that we have no means of independent measurement of odors.

Medicine and Electricity

IT is well known that when an electric current is passed through certain solutions some of the constituents follow the current to the positive pole and others move toward the negative pole. Thus the liquid is decomposed—a process that is called "electrolysis." The familiar operation of electroplating utilizes this process, the metal object to be plated forming in this case the pole by which the electric current leaves the solution.

It was proposed last year by Professor Leduc, of Nantes, France, to force medicaments into the human body in this same way. Leduc soaked a pad in strychnine solution, fastened it to a rabbit's ear and then passed a current through both pad and ear. The strychnine followed the current into the tissues of the animal and killed it.

Great progress has been made during the last year in this method of treatment, which has been named "ionic medication," from the separation of the medicinal solution into its positive and negative elements, or "ions." Another name, "cataphoresis," is from a Greek word signifying "to carry down," from the way in which the electric current carries the medicinal substance down with it into the tissues.

The treatment has been used with various affections of the skin, warts, sciatica and rheumatism. Recently a malignant ulcer was healed by forcing zinc into it electrically in this way. A method which saturates the tissues with the healing substance instead of merely allowing it to act on the surface is evidently destined to a career of usefulness.

Another Treatment for Cancer.

THE difficulty of an operation for cancer consists in making sure that all the diseased tissue shall be cut away. A recurrence of the trouble is almost always due to the fact that apparently healthy tissue is in reality affected. The surgeon therefore is obliged to remove much surrounding tissue in the operation. This necessity, it is said, is obviated by a new method invented in France and known as the "method of fulguration"—literally, "cure by lightning stroke." This consists in the treatment of the surrounding parts, after surgical removal of the evidently diseased tissue, with electric discharges of high frequency and high tension—veritable lightning in miniature—which, it is asserted, arrests the spread of the disease and promotes the healing of the wound in a normal way. This "lightning cure" not only makes the return of the malady less likely, but greatly relieves the pain, acting as a local anaesthetic. For this reason alone, if for no other, it is doubtless a valuable discovery.

CITY BREVITIES.

F. A. Poure, of Chicago, formerly with the Kimball Piano Co., has engaged himself with the King Piano Co., of this city, as special salesman.

While passing in front of the Wolf & Dessauer dry goods store yesterday Charles Herr, of 837 Lafayette street, slipped and fell, sustaining a dislocation of the right shoulder. While painful, the injury was not serious and Mr. Herr was able to wend his way homeward unaided.

FEVER SORES.

Fever sores and old chronic sores should not be healed entirely, but should be kept in healthy condition. This can be done by applying Chamberlain's Salve. This salve has no superior for this purpose. It is also most excellent for chapped hands, sore nipples, burns and diseases of the skin. For sale by all druggists.
